AGREE ON 206,000 ARMY

DEFENSE MEASURE WRANGLE IS ENDED

House and Senate Conferees Reach Basis for United Action on the Army Reorganization Bill.

Washington, May 13.—A regular army of 206,000 men at peace strength, capable of expansion to 254,000 men in time of war, was agreed upon today by house and senate conferees on the army reorganization bill, first of the big national defense measures. The report will be submitted to both branches of congress for ratification next week.

In the agreement on the regular army the senate bill system of organization was retained as a substitute for the house system which would have recruited a maximum army of 140,000 men. The regular line of the army, the bill now provides can never go below 100,000 and its maximum strength in times of peace would be 175,000. In this calculation, however, there are excluded 5,723 Philippine scouts, 6,409 in the quartermasters corps, 7,290 in the medical department, 3,287 in the signal corps and 8,750 unassigned recruits, a total of 31,659. These added to the regular line of 175,000 men give a total regular army peace strength of 206,659. The president is authorized to increase the regular army divisions to maximum strength without congressional action.

Under the conference agreement the regular army would consist of 65 regiments of infantry, 25 regiments of cavalry, 21 regiments of field artillery, a coast artillery corps of 30,009 officers and men, a signal corps of 3,387 men, including the aviation section, and seven regiments of engineers. In the aviation section the number of officers is increased from a total of 60 to 148, including one colonel. The organization plan contemplates attaining the full peace strength within five years as proposed in the original preparedness plans.

Final agreement was reached on the long-disputed measure of a short session of the conference committee. Another meeting will be held Monday to sign the report. "I think we have an excellent bill," said Chairman Chamberlain of the senate military affairs committee. Chairman Hay of the house committee also praised the report and approval by both houses is expected.

FOR GREATER FORT WAYNE

City and County Officials Viewing Territory for Annexation.

LARGE EXPANSION OF CITY IN VIEW

Would Straighten Boundary Lines and Make Way for Boulevard System.

With a view to territorial expansion for a greater Fort Wayne, creating possibilities for a comprehensive boulevard system and the straightening of the city's boundary lines from their present tortuous course, officials representing the city and county are Saturday afternoon making an extensive tour of inspection of the lands that constitute the environs of Fort Wayne on her four sides.

The tour is proceedings under auspices of a sub-committee of the city council's committee of the whole. Councilman Jacob Agne is chairman of the sub-committee and his associates are Councilman-at-Large Paul Kinder and Ward Councilmen Frank J. Schlebecker, Peter A. Deitschel and Eugene B. Smith, appointed at the last meeting of the committee of the whole for this purpose in connection with an ordinance now pending for the annexation of territory north of the city. In the party are Members R. E. Kelly, Frank E. Singrey and Henry Hilgeman, of the city board of works; Secretary C. J. Steiss, of the park board, and County Commissioners W. C. Schwier, A. J. Black and Henry A. Wetzell.

REPULSE FOR FRENCH FORCE

Night Attack on Germans Before Verdun Meets With Failure.

VICE CHANCELLOR DELBRUECK IS OUT

Emperor William is Believed to Have Asked His Resignation.

Today's War News Given in Summary

The Douamont region in Verdun front where the Germans for more than two months past have been held fairly close to the line of their original advance in the February drive, is again the scene of desperate fighting.

Violent bombardment of French positions in that section yesterday was followed by strong attacks in which, according to the afternoon bulletin from Paris the Germans suffered heavy losses and failed to gain any ground.

Across the Meuse, northwest of Verdun, no infantry encounters are reported but the artillrey is being kept busy firing on both sides, being virtually without cessation.

Vienna today reports continually increasing activity in the vicinity of the Volpynian fortress triangle on the Russian front. The moves of the opposing commanders, however, have not yet resulted in decisive results for either side, nor have there been important shifts in the line along the Austro-Italian front.

The resignation of Dr. Clemens Delbrueck, German vice chancellor and minister of the interior, is announced from Berlin. Ill health is given as the reason for his withdrawal from official life.

Berlin, May 13.—The repulse of a night attack by the French southwest of Dead Man's hill on the Verdun front is reported in today's official statement by the war office. Attempts by the French to advance in the Avocourt and Malancourt woods also were fruitless.

The resignation of Clemens Delbrueck, minister of the interior and vice-chancellor, has been officially announced. Minister Delbrueck has offered his resignation on account of illness which will require long treatment. No immediate appointment of his successor is expected.

Clemens Delbrueck has been minister of the interior since July, 1914, when he succeeded Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, present German chancellor. In the last few months he has been the object

FORMER RAILWAY MAN CLAIMED BY DEATH

James K. McCracken Passes Away After Illness of Several Months.

After several months of suffering, James Kelly McCracken, years ago prominent in railway circles, died Friday evening at 7 o'clock at his home in the White apartments. He was 78 years old.

For the past ten years Mr. McCracken had been in declining health and for the past few months had been confined to his home most of the time. Death was due to apoplexy, although there were other complications.

At one time Mr. McCracken was the only ticket agent in the city of Fort Wayne, an unique distinction when considering the number of ticket agents here at the present time.

The deceased was born in Bucyrus, O., May 10, 1838, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James McCracken. His first position with a railroad was offered to him at the age of twenty when he accepted employment with the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway company at Bucyrus. He continued in the employ of this company for twenty-eight years with the exception of the time he served in the civil war. Among the positions he held were telegraph operator at Bucyrus, joint ticket agent for the Pennsylvania and Wabash railroads at Fort Wayne, agent at Upper Sandusky, Ohio, and from 1874 to 1880 general agent for the Pennsylvania in this city.

Railroad Contractor.

Mr. McCracken engaged in railroad construction work in 1886, resigning his position with the Pennsylvania to become a member of the firm of W. V. McCracken & Co., which was coomposed of his four brothers, W. V. McCracken, A. M. McCracken, Harvey M. McCracken and C. W. McCracken. The company did much work and built many miles of railroad, including one hundred miles of the Toledo, Saginaw & Muskegon railroad, now a part of the Grand Trunk system; forty miles of the Toledo & Ann Arbor Railroad company; forty miles of the Wheeling & Lake Erie; fifty miles in Kansas and Missouri for the Gould interests; 188 miles of the Louisville & Nashville; sixty miles of the Chesapeake & Ohio; fourteen miles of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton.

The company dissolved in 1894 and Mr. McCracken engaged in the insurance

New York Parades to Emphasize Nation's Need of Preparedness.

MEN AND WOMEN IN GREAT PROCESSION

Twelve Hours Required for Immense Parade to Complete Its March.

New York, May 13.—New York's belief that the nation should prepare for war was expressed today by nearly 145,000 men and women marching in one of the greatest processions ever assembled for the promotion of an idea.

Twenty abreast, filling the streets from curb to curb, keeping in step to the patriotic tunes of two hundred bands, the parade that began this morning will last for twelve hours or longer.

Many business houses are closed while the city gives itself up to its celebration of Preparedness day. The sidewalks from the Battery to Fifty-ninth street, the start and finish of the parade, are crowded. It is estimated that at least one million persons saw the demonstration.

Twenty thousand women are in the pageant. Workers in two hundred or-

LANGHORNE'S MEN PURSUING RAIDERS

No Hostile Purpose Seen in Sending Carranza Troops Northward.

Marathon, Tex., May 13.—Major George T. Langhorne and his flying squadron of the Eighth cavalry are dashing over the white sand hills in Mexico today in a supreme effort to surprise the Mexican raiders of Glenn Springs and Boquillas.

NO HOSTILE PURPOSE.

Washington, May 13.—Dispatch of 1,500 Carranza troops northward toward the border in the Big Bend district of Coahuila, reported in border advices, was regarded by officials here today as possibly indicating that the Mexican de facto government is making renewed efforts to capture bandits who have raided American border towns.

Reports that the expedition might have a hostile purpose were not regarded seriously by administration authorities. They intimated that the action tended to strengthen the belief that American and Mexican military authorities at El Paso had reached an unwritten agreement to co-operate in patrolling the border.

NEW MEXICO IS READY.

Columbus, N. M., May 13.—Mobilization of the one thousand men of the New Mexico national guard was completed here with the arrival early today of additional companies from Deming, Silver City, Clois, Portales, Artesia and Carlsbad, and a battery of artillery from Roswell. The militia encamped on the southern extremity of the military reservation consists of a skeleton regiment of infantry and the battery. Recruiting to bring the command to war strength is progressing rapidly throughout the state, according to reports today to H. T. Hering, adjutant general.

Reports reaching here from apparently authentic sources said that all southbound supply truck trains between Colonia Dublan and Namiquipa are being halted and sent back to the field base at Dublan.

DEPARTS FOR MOLLENDO.

Lima, Peru, May 13.—The American financial commission, which has been visiting Peru, departed today for Mollendo on its way to Bolivia.

RETURN FROM CONVENTION.

Perry Shober and Harry Parks returned Saturday from Cincinnati where they attended the national convention of the American Federation of Musicians.

LAST MINUTE NEWS

VILLA AGAIN NEAR U. S. BORDER, IS NEW REPORT.

Field Headquarters Near Namiquipa, Chihuahua, May 12.—(By Wireless to Columbus, May 13.)—Detachments of American troops today are investigating a rumor that Villa, at the head of a command of 1,100 men, is in hiding in the mountains between Ascencion, Chihuahua, and Culberson's ranch, about 65 miles west of Columbus, N. M., on the American side of the frontier.

NO TRUTH IN RUMOR OF NEW BANDIT RAID.

Del Rio, Texas, May 13.—There is no truth in a report of a raid last night by Mexicans in the vicinity of Sanderson, Texas, it was learned here today. The report said Mexicans killed a score of Americans.

starts next Tuesday and terminates at midnight May 26, by which time $300,000 must be subscribed if Fort Wayne is to have a Y. M. C. A.

At a meeting of the executive committee late Friday afternoon it was decided to place the goal and the binding point at $300,000 instead of $400,000 as agreed upon at the Muncie meeting. It will be twice the amount raised at Evansville in a ten days' campaign.

All enlisted men for the big campaign are urgently requested to attend the workers' coaching conference to be held in the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. "Ammunition" will be distributed and every worker will be equipped for active participation in the campaign. Each team will be credited with a subscription amounting to $10 per man for every worker it has present at the "preparedness" meeting.

HAS NOTHING TO SPEND BUT TIME

So John Davis is Waiting Weeks for Jury Trial for Sousing.

The patient little waiter is John Davis. For almost two weeks he has been contenting himself with a bunk and the kind of grub that is doled out to prisoners in the county jail, awaiting such disposition of events as will make it possible for the city court to give him a trial by jury on a charge of plain drunk. When arraigned early last week Davis refused to plead to the charge and demanded the right of an American freeman to trial by a jury of peers. The case was continued until last Monday, but hunting up of a dozen peers of the Davis brand was a task for which there had not been time and the case was continued until May 13. Davis was before the court Saturday morning and sought to strike a bargain with the court.

"I'll plead guilty to the charge on the understanding that you're to let me go and I'll get right out of town," said Davis.

Judge H. Waveland Kerr refused to dicker.

"The jury trial goes, then," declared Davis.

"The state asks a continuance for one week," put in Prosecutor John C. Hoffman. "I've got to be in the circuit court in five minutes and can't have a jury trial today."

The case thereupon was continued until May 20 and Davis went back to jail to wait. By the time his case comes up again he will have been waiting in jail almost three weeks to vindicate his rights. He probably could have got off with an indefinite continuance by pleading in the first place.

Cut Up His Pal's Clothes.

Harry Wilson, a young vagabond with the wanderlust, who has been stopping at the East Columbia street mission for a few days, wanted another young man there to leave the city with him. Wilson's pal did not want to go and that peeved Wilson. He borrowed his friend's knife and later went to that young man's room and slashed his coat and trousers to ribbons. In the city court he denied his guilt, but was fined $10 and costs and given an added fifteen days in jail on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Gang of Vags Raided by Police.

Charles Schwartz, Jim Taylor, John White, James Stevenson, Joe Barnes and Billie Wilson, a sextette of worthies pinched by Officer George Galentine in a raid Friday night on the warehouse of the Old Fort Cement company, at Clay street and the Nickel Plate tracks, were booked for vagrancy and each pleaded not guilty. Wilson, who is a fiend for raw alcohol and had a bottle of that fiery liquid on him, was fined $15 and costs. He has been arrested many times and is known among the police as "White Line" Wilson. Two of the others had bottles of whisky. Schwartz, Taylor and Stevenson were fined $5 and costs and White and Barnes were continued until Monday. All claimed that they had been working.

Other City Court Cases.

These drunks were disposed of: Harry Tisdell, continued until Monday; Fred Doxey, a cigarmaker, who insisted on addressing the court, got $1 and costs; William Smith, continued indefinitely.

Oliver Forabee, John Brockhouse, William Smith, William Watson and Morris Martin, loiterers, were turned loose, as were Carl Lindeman and John Dolin, arrested several days ago as vagrants.

Fred Sheldon, charged with assault and battery, was continued until Tuesday and released on his own recognizance.

Phil Mendel, arrested on a loitering charge by Detective Sergeant William F. Pappert, was continued until next week. He has been drunk in the city for a day or two and was trying to sell a ring with a small diamond at a pawnshop when the officer apprehended him.

NOTES OF THE POLICE.

Charles Robinson reports to the police that a large black horse belonging to him has disappeared from the Rockhill farm, west of the city, and he believes it was stolen.

According to a report to police headquarters, Lester Miller, 722 Taylor street, was struck and injured by a jitney bus of which Orville DeLong was the driver, Friday night.

The Ford touring car belonging to Henry C. Pequignot, the real estate man residing at 924 Washington boulevard east, was stolen from the street in front of the Elks' temple, Friday night about 9 o'clock. The car was found about 1 oclock Saturday morning at Calhoun and Williams streets.

Mr. McCracken was one of the oldest members of the Scottish Rite and was also a member of Fort Wayne commanadery, Knights Templar. He served fourteen years as its recorder. VERSION FROM PARIS.

Paris, May 13.—The French trenches southwest of Fort Douaumont and positions to the north of the Thiaumont farm were violently bombarded yesterday, according to official report of the French war office issued today. The report says that all of the German attacks were repulsed, the enemy sustaining serious losses. On the left bank of the Meuse artillery combats continue uninterrupted.

UNION LABOR ISSUE CAST OUT BY VOTE

Methodists Hear Partial Report from Committee on Episcopacy.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 13.—By a vote of 447 to 280, the Methodist general conference eliminated that part of the report of the commission on social service which declared that a prererence should be given union labor in all matters affecting employment "insofar as its methods are just and insofar as the rights of unorganized men are not infringed upon."

The partial report of the committee on episcopacy concerning the question of efficacy of the bishops "recommended the retirement of Bishop Earl Cranston, of Washington, and John W. Hamilton, of Boston, and Joseph C. Hartzell, a missionary bishop of Africa, because they have reached the retirement age, and Missionary Bishop Isaac B. Scott, of Liberia, and Merriman C. Harris, of Korea, who applied for retirement. The committee recommended the reappointment of the other members of the board of bishops. The committee will hold a special meeting tonight at which it is expected an agreement will be reached on the number of new bishops to be chosen in an endeavor to report Monday and begin balloting Tuesday.

Members of the Methodist Episcopal church who play cards, dance and attend the theater will no longer be liable to expulsion if recommendations made by a sub-committee of the general conference which has been considering the question of amusements are adopted by the committee on the state of the church and later by the conference. The report was offered to the main committee late yesterday and after an acrimonious discussion action was deferred until Monday.

By a vote of ten to eight the subcommittee recommended the elimination from the Book of Discipline of the clause prohibiting these amusements and offered as a substitute an additional paragraph in which warning is made against the diversions. The effect of the proposed change is to remove the absolute prohibition, but to place the church on record as still strongly opposed to these forms of amusements. A minority report was submitted advising the retention of the paragraph as it now stands.

It was maintained by those favoring removal of the restriction that the penalty now provided is not enforced in any church and that the effect upon young people will be much greater if a provision that cannot be enforced is withdrawn, and a general warning issued that the church does not sanction "dancing, playing at games of chance, attending theaters, horse races, circuses, dancing parties, or patronizing dancing schools."

Opposition to the change is based on the allegation that it means the church is "letting down the bars."

ganizations, lawyers and other professional men, city officials and city employes and 10,000 members of the national guard in uniform and thousands of veterans of the Spanish war compose the long column. The lawyers are led by twenty justices of the supreme court.

Sixty-four Divisions.

The marchers were divided into sixty-four divisions. The hour set for the start was 9:30 a. m. and it is expected that the last division will not reach the disbanding point until 10:20 o'clock tonight.

Demands for a place in the parade so greatly exceeded the time and space that the promoters were compelled to reject 60,000 applications. Beginning at the Battery at the southern tip of Manhattan island, the divisions fell in line at intervals all the way up Lower Broadway, Center and Lafayette streets and Fifth avenue, nearly to the reviewing stand erected in Madison Square. There from a stand containing thousands of spectators, Major General Leonard Wood, Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, commandant of the New York navy yard, and Mayor Mitchel reviewed the parade.

Opponents Combat It.

Anti-preparedness bodies such as the women's peace party and the socialists endeavored to offset the preparedness spirit by circulating among the spectators circulars. Across Fifth avenue from the reviewing stand the woman's party hung out a banner with the inscription: "There are only 100,000 of you. You are not the only patriots. Two million families, 500,000 mine workers and organized labor of America are opposed to what you and Wall street are marching for. Are you sure you are right?

FOR GREATER FORT WAYNE

Would Have Greater City.

The rapid growth of Fort Wayne and the prospect that a vast industrial development now in progress will within the next year or two add many thousands of inhabitants to the city's population constitute a practical argument for territorial expansion and provision on a large scale for future growth.

Coupled with this purpose is the wish to make provision for the development of the boulevard system contemplated in the plans prepared several years ago by Landscape Engineer George Kessler, of St. Louis, and to give more symmetrical outline to the platting of the city. This latter purpose will, if realized aid to keep thoroughfares straight and make all city improvements and the extension of municipal utilities a matter of greater ease.

The council's sub-committee will probably work out the plans for expansion in conjunction with the board of works, the city engineering department and the county commissioners, and make a report to the council.

MRS. SCHOTT-GEARY TO WED ONCE MORE

If the local courts do not conceive that they are being monkeyed with in frivolous fashion, the marriage of Mrs. Esther Schott-Geary and Carroll W. Geary will be annulled and then if there are no obstacles and neither Mrs. Schott-Geary and Edward W. Schott stops to take a sober second thought these two will for the fourth time do the bridal march to the altar of Hymen and again unite their hearts and hands. Mrs. Scott-Geary and Mr. Geary procured a license and were married Thursday night by Justice Henry J. Grabner. It now transpires that the pair have decided they are not so well mated as they had anticipated they were likely to be and that Mr. Geary is going to leave the city, after the marriage has been annulled, if it can be. Following this Ed Schott and Esther will try it again. She has married and divorced him but three times and thinks there is reason to hope for a happy union. Bridegroom Geary, ex-Husband Schott and Mrs. Schott-Geary held a conference at the Schott-Geary home, 1130 High street, Friday night, and planned this felicitous program. Following the wedding ceremony Thursday night Schott went to the Schott-Geary home and undertook to break up the house-keeping of the newly-wed couple, but was tossed into the street by his husky successor in Mrs. Schott-Geary's affections. The police were called, but no arrests were made.

BIGGEST BALLOT ON RECORD.

Philadelphia Voter Must Place 44 Marks to Record Wishes.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 13.—Pennsylvania voters will be handed the largest primary ticket in the history of the uniform primary law when they go to the polling places to vote next Tuesday. This year candidates for president, auditor general and state treasurer and delegates and alternates at large will be voted for at a state-wide primary for the first time.

In Philadelphia a voter must place 44 marks on his ballot in order to vote for all the party candidates and record his wishes regarding the proposed $114,000,000 municipal loan. It is feared at the state capital that the chances of any counties reporting official counts before next Saturday are small.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

STRANGE ASSAULT PUZZLES OFFICERS

Mrs. Clara Deter, Near Lagrange, Is Found Bound and Gagged on Floor in Her Home.

Lagrange, Ind., May 13.—Sheriff Minnick and Prosecutor Wade have not yet been able to obtain a detailed account from Mrs. Clara Deter of the two men who invaded her home near this city, bound and gaggeed her and left her on the floor of her kitchen. The assault on Mrs. Deter took place, as near as can be learned, about 3 o'clock in the morning, the two men arriving at her country home in an automobile. While there are several theories of the assault none of them is definite enough to justify decisive action by the authorities. The woman has been in a terribly distraught state of mind since the officers went to her home and released her and has not given them any information on which they can proceed. It is said, however, that arrests may soon be made. Mrs. Deter, whose husband has been lately separated from her because of domestic trouble and staying at the home of his brother a few miles distant, was in her residence with her two little daughters, neither of whom knew anything of the outrage until 5 o'clock in the morning, when one of them went downstairs and discovered her mother helpless on the floor. She notified Morton Gowenn, a neighbor, who telephoned Sheriff Minnick. The sheriff, Deputy Kunce and Prosecutor Wade went at once to the house. Mrs. Deter is constantly under the care of a physician. Mr. and Mrs. Deter were married several months ago, each having been previously married. Mrs. Deter formerly resided in Missouri.

VAN WERT HAS PEEPING TOM

Van Wert, Ohio, May 13.—Complaints made to police officers indicate that a real "Peeping Tom" is active in Van Wert, as in three instances in the last two days residents have called officers to hunt for a man whom they have seen looking into houses and otherwise acting in a suspicious manner. Two of the calls came to the police from houses in widely different parts of town and at several hours apart. In both cases the description of the man was the same. So far he has made no serious attempts to break into houses or commit any crime other than doing his peeping stunt. The police are making every effort to locate the "Peeping Tom" and put an end to his activities.

CARRY THE FIGHT ON FLIES TO THE BARN

Ninety per cent. of all flies are born in stable refuse. Keep the stable clean.

BY DR. JEAN DAWSON
America's Most Famous Woman Fly Fighter.

To make your home or your hometown a "flyless city" you must make the fight against flies a neighborhood fight.

After swatting flies in the house and trapping them in the yard, start a campaign to clean up barns, stables and alleyways.

You may not have a barn or a stable, but there is sure to be one in the neighborhood. If it is not kept "flyless" your efforts at home will go for naught.

The uncovered manure pile is the most prolific source of the fly nuisance, for 90 per cent. of all flies breed in horse manure.

In this the eggs are laid, on it the maggots feed, and over it the fully developed flies crawl, picking up disease germs which they later bring into your home.

Manure should never be left to accumulate in a pile against the barn. It rots the walls of the barn and furnishes a breeding place for man's most dangerous enemy.

If the owner of the barn or stable does not take any interest, make it your business as a taxpayer to see that it is hauled away at least once a week. Also see that until hauled away it is kept in covered disposal boxes.

Make it your duty and arouse your neighbors' interest to see that these receptacles are frequently inspected; to see that they are properly covered and that the contents are not being scattered around the alleyways.

It has been found that one pound of stable refuse will frequently contain more than 1,000 house flies or "typhoid" flies.

AGREE ON 206,000 ARMY

DEFENSE MEASURE WRANGLE IS ENDED

House and Senate Conferees Reach Basis for United Action on the Army Reorganization Bill.

Washington, May 13.—A regular army of 206,000 men at peace strength, capable of expansion to 254,000 men in time of war, was agreed upon today by house and senate conferees on the army reorganization bill, first of the big national defense measures. The report will be submitted to both branches of congress for ratification next week.

In the agreement on the regular army the senate bill system of organization was retained as a substitute for the house system which would have recruited a maximum army of 140,000 men. The regular line of the army, the bill now provides can never go below 100,000 and its maximum strength in times of peace would be 175,000. In this calculation, however, there are excluded 5,723 Philippine scouts, 6,409 in the quartermasters corps, 7,290 in the medical department, 3,287 in the signal corps and 8,750 unassigned recruits, a total of 31,659. These added to the regular line of 175,000 men give a total regular army peace strength of 206,659. The president is authorized to increase the regular army divisions to maximum strength without congressional action.

Under the conference agreement the regular army would consist of 65 regiments of infantry, 25 regiments of cavalry, 21 regiments of field artillery, a coast artillery corps of 30,000 officers and men, a signal corps of 3,387 men, including the aviation section, and seven regiments of engineers. In the aviation section the number of officers is increased from a total of 60 to 148, including one colonel. The organization plan contemplates attaining the full peace strength within five years as proposed in the original preparedness plans.

Final agreement was reached on the long-disputed measure of a short session of the conference committee. Another meeting will be held Monday to sign the report. "I think we have an excellent bill," said Chairman Chamberlain of the senate military affairs committee. Chairman Hay of the house committee also praised the report and approval by both houses is expected.

FOR GREATER FORT WAYNE

City and County Officials Viewing Territory for Annexation.

LARGE EXPANSION OF CITY IN VIEW

Would Straighten Boundary Lines and Make Way for Boulevard System.

With a view to territorial expansion for a greater Fort Wayne, creating possibilities for a comprehensive boulevard system and the straightening of the city's boundary lines from their present tortuous course, officials representing the city and county are Saturday afternoon making an extensive tour of inspection of the lands that constitute the environs of Fort Wayne on her four sides.

The tour is proceedings under auspices of a sub-committee of the city council's committee of the whole. Councilman Jacob Agne is chairman of the sub-committee and his associates are Councilman-at-Large Paul Kinder and Ward Councilmen Frank J. Schlebecker, Peter A. Deitschel and Eugene B. Smith, appointed at the last meeting of the committee of the whole for this purpose in connection with an ordinance now pending for the annexation of territory north of the city. In the party are Members R. E. Kelly, Frank E. Singrey and Henry Hilgeman, of the city board of works; Secretary C. J. Steiss, of the park board, and County Commissioners W. C. Schwier, A. J. Black and Henry A. Wetzell.

NO DISH FOR A DYSPEPTIC!

LANGHORNE'S MEN PURSUING RAIDERS

No Hostile Purpose Seen in Sending Carranza Troops Northward.

Marathon, Tex., May 13.—Major George T. Langhorne and his flying squadron of the Eighth cavalry are dashing over the white sand hills in Mexico today in a supreme effort to surprise the Mexican raiders of Glenn Springs and Boquillas.

NO HOSTILE PURPOSE.

Washington, May 13.—Dispatch of 1,500 Carranza troops northward toward the border in the Big Bend district of Coahuila, reported in border advices, was regarded by officials here today as possibly indicating that the Mexican de facto government is making renewed efforts to capture bandits who have raided American border towns.

Reports that the expedition might have a hostile purpose were not regarded seriously by administration authorities. They intimated that the action tended to strengthen the belief that American and Mexican military authorities at El Paso had reached an unwritten agreement to co-operate in patrolling the border.

NEW MEXICO IS READY.

Columbus, N. M., May 13.—Mobilization of the one thousand men of the New Mexico national guard was completed here with the arrival early today of additional companies from Deming, Silver City, Clois, Portales, Artesia and Carlsbad, and a battery of artillery from Roswell. The militia encamped on the southern extremity of the military reservation consists of a skeleton regiment of infantry and the battery. Recruiting to bring the command to war strength is progressing rapidly throughout the state, according to reports today to H. T. Hering, adjutant general.

Reports reaching here from apparently authentic sources said that all southbound supply truck trains between Colonia Dublan and Namiquipa are being halted and sent back to the field base at Dublan.

starts next Tuesday and terminates at midnight May 26, by which time $300,000 must be subscribed if Fort Wayne is to have a Y. M. C. A.

At a meeting of the executive committee late Friday afternoon it was decided to place the goal and the binding point at $300,000 instead of $400,000 as agreed upon at the Muncie meeting. It will be twice the amount raised at Evansville in a ten days' campaign.

All enlisted men for the big campaign are urgently requested to attend the workers' coaching conference to be held in the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. "Ammunition" will be distributed and every worker will be equipped for active participation in the campaign. Each team will be credited with a subscription amounting to $10 per man for every worker it has present at the "preparedness" meeting.

The first published list of the members of the twenty teams is as follows:

REPULSE FOR FRENCH FORCE

Night Attack on Germans Before Verdun Meets With Failure.

VICE CHANCELLOR DELBRUECK IS OUT

Emperor William is Believed to Have Asked His Resignation.

Today's War News Given in Summary

The Douamont region in Verdun front where the Germans for more than two months past have been held fairly close to the line of their original advance in the February drive, is again the scene of desperate fighting.

Violent bombardment of French positions in that section yesterday was followed by strong attacks in which, according to the afternoon bulletin from Paris the Germans suffered heavy losses and failed to gain any ground.

Across the Meuse, northwest of Verdun, no infantry encounters are reported but the artillrey is being kept busy firing on both sides, being virtually without cessation.

Vienna today reports continually increasing activity in the vicinity of the Volpynian fortress triangle on the Russian front. The moves of the opposing commanders, however, have not yet resulted in decisive results for either side, nor have there been important shifts in the line along the Austro-Italian front.

The resignation of Dr. Clemens Delbrueck, German vice chancellor and minister of the interior, is announced from Berlin. Ill health is given as the reason for his withdrawal from official life.

Berlin, May 13.—The repulse of a night attack by the French southwest of Dead Man's hill on the Verdun front is reported in today's official statement by the war office. Attempts by the French to advance in the Avocourt and Malancourt woods also were fruitless.

The resignation of Clemens Delbrueck, minister of the interior and vice-chancellor, has been officially announced. Minister Delbrueck has offered his resignation on account of illness which will require long treatment. No immediate appointment of his successor is expected.

Clemens Delbrueck has been minister of the interior since July, 1914, when he succeeded Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, present German chancellor. In the last few months he has been the object

FORMER RAILWAY MAN CLAIMED BY DEATH

James K. McCracken Passes Away After Illness of Several Months.

After several months of suffering, James Kelly McCracken, years ago prominent in railway circles, died Friday evening at 7 o'clock at his home in the White apartments. He was 78 years old.

For the past ten years Mr. McCracken had been in declining health and for the past few months had been confined to his home most of the time. Death was due to apoplexy, although there were other complications.

At one time Mr. McCracken was the only ticket agent in the city of Fort Wayne, an unique distinction when considering the number of ticket agents here at the present time.

The deceased was born in Bucyrus, O., May 10, 1838, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James McCracken. His first position with a railroad was offered to him at the age of twenty when he accepted employment with the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway company at Bucyrus. He continued in the employ of this company for twenty-eight years with the exception of the time he served in the civil war. Among the positions he held were telegraph operator at Bucyrus, joint ticket agent for the Pennsylvania and Wabash railroads at Fort Wayne, agent at Upper Sandusky, Ohio, and from 1874 to 1886 general agent for the Pennsylvania in this city.

Railroad Contractor.

Mr. McCracken engaged in railroad construction work in 1886, resigning his position with the Pennsylvania to become a member of the firm of W. V. McCracken & Co., which was coomposed of his four brothers, W. V. McCracken, A. M. McCracken, Harvey M. McCracken and C. W. McCracken. The company did much work and built many miles of railroad, including one hundred miles of the Toledo, Saginaw & Muskegon railroad, now a part of the Grand Trunk system; forty miles of the Toledo & Ann Arbor Railroad company; forty miles of the Wheeling & Lake Erie; fifty miles in Kansas and Missouri for the Gould interests; 188 miles of the Louisville & Nashville; sixty miles of the Chesapeake & Ohio; fourteen miles of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton.

The company dissolved in 1894 and Mr. McCracken engaged in the insurance

New York Parades to Emphasize Nation's Need of Preparedness.

MEN AND WOMEN IN GREAT PROCESSION

Twelve Hours Required for Immense Parade to Complete Its March.

New York, May 13.—New York's belief that the nation should prepare for war was expressed today by nearly 145,000 men and women marching in one of the greatest processions ever assembled for the promotion of an idea.

Twenty abreast, filling the streets from curb to curb, keeping in step to the patriotic tunes of two hundred bands, the parade that began this morning will last for twelve hours or longer.

Many business houses are closed while the city gives itself up to its celebration of Preparedness day. The sidewalks from the Battery to Fifty-ninth street, the start and finish of the parade, are crowded. It is estimated that at least one million persons saw the demonstration.

Twenty thousand women are in the pageant. Workers in two hundred or-

SIGNS OF SPRING.

Notwithstanding the cool breezes of the past two days necessitating the restarting of furnace fires that had been permitted to go out, spring is here and as a proof that it is here a picture of Superintendent D. O. McComb, of the county schools, wearing a straw hat and a bouquet on the lapel of his coat of no small magnitude, is herewith reproduced. It is one of the signs of spring. The photograph was taken on the south steps of the court house.

HAS NOTHING TO SPEND BUT TIME

So John Davis is Waiting Weeks for Jury Trial for Sousing.

The patient little waiter is John Davis. For almost two weeks he has been contenting himself with a bunk and the kind of grub that is doled out to prisoners in the county jail, awaiting such disposition of events as will make it possible for the city court to give him a trial by jury on a charge of plain drunk. When arraigned early last week Davis refused to plead to the charge and demanded the right of an American freeman to trial by a jury of peers. The case was continued until last Monday, but hunting up of a dozen peers of the Davis brand was a task for which there had not been time and the case was continued until May 13. Davis was before the court Saturday morning and sought to strike a bargain with the court.

"I'll plead guilty to the charge on the understanding that you're to let me go and I'll get right out of town," said Davis.

Judge H. Waveland Kerr refused to dicker.

"The jury trial goes, then," declared Davis.

"The state asks a continuance for one week," put in Prosecutor John C. Hoffman. "I've got to be in the circuit court in five minutes and can't have a jury trial today."

The case thereupon was continued until May 20 and Davis went back to jail to wait. By the time his case comes up again he will have been waiting in jail almost three weeks to vindicate his rights. He probably could have got off with an indefinite continuance by pleading in the first place.

Cut Up His Pal's Clothes.

Harry Wilson, a young vagabond with the wanderlust, who has been stopping at the East Columbia street mission for a few days, wanted another young man there to leave the city with him. Wilson's pal did not want to go and that peeved Wilson. He borrowed his friend's knife and later went to that young man's room and slashed his coat and trousers to ribbons. In the city court he denied his guilt, but was fined $10 and costs and given an added fifteen days in jail on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Gang of Vags Raided by Police.

Charles Schwartz, Jim Taylor, John White, James Stevenson, Joe Barnes and Billie Wilson, a sextette of worthies pinched by Officer George Galentine in a raid Friday night on the warehouse of the Old Fort Cement company, at Clay street and the Nickel Plate tracks, were booked for vagrancy and each pleaded not guilty. Wilson, who is a fiend for raw alcohol and had a bottle of that fiery liquid on him, was fined $15 and costs. He has been arrested many times and is known among the police as "White Line" Wilson. Two of the others had bottles of whisky. Schwartz, Taylor and Stevenson were fined $5 and costs and White and Barnes were continued until Monday. All claimed that they had been working.

Other City Court Cases.

These drunks were disposed of: Harry Tisdell, continued until Monday; Fred Doxey, a cigarmaker, who insisted on addressing the court, got $1 and costs; William Smith, continued indefinitely.

Oliver Forabee, John Brockhouse, William Smith, William Watson and Morris Martin, loiterers, were turned loose, as were Carl Lindeman and John Dolin, arrested several days ago as vagrants.

Fred Sheldon, charged with assault and battery, was continued until Tuesday and released on his own recognizance.

Phil Mendel, arrested on a loitering charge by Detective Sergeant William F. Pappert, was continued until next week. He has been drunk in the city for a day or two and was trying to sell a ring with a small diamond at a pawnshop when the officer apprehended him.

NOTES OF THE POLICE.

Charles Robinson reports to the police that a large black horse belonging to him has disappeared from the Rockhill farm, west of the city, and he believes it was stolen.

According to a report to police headquarters, Lester Miller, 722 Taylor street, was struck and injured by a jitney bus of which Orville DeLong was the driver, Friday night.

The Ford touring car belonging to Henry C. Pequignot, the real estate man residing at 121 West Washington boulevard east, was stolen from the street in front of the Elks' temple, Friday night about 9 o'clock. The car was found about 1 o'clock Saturday morning at Calhoun and Williams streets.

business in this city, retiring about two years ago because of ill health.

Prominent in Masonic Circles.

Mr. McCracken was one of the oldest members of the Scottish Rite and was also a member of Fort Wayne commanadery, Knights Templar. He served fourteen years as its recorder. He was affiliated with the First Presbyterian church and was a member of the building committee when the present church was erected. For four years he served as a member of the board of works during the administration of Mayor Henry P. Scherer, who is now township trustee.

The deceased served in the civil war as a member of the Eighty-sixth Ohio infantry and was a charter member and a past commander of Sian S. Bass post. On May 10, 1865, he was married to Miss Ella A. Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Davis, of this city. She died on December 12, 1905.

He is survived by two daughters, Miss Elizabeth McCracken, of this city, and Mrs. J. H. Leonard, of East Orange, N. J.; one son, Fred C. McCracken, of Louisville, Ky., and two brothers and three sisters—C. W. McCracken, of Bucyrus; H. M. McCracken, of Louisville, Ky.; Portia A. and Augusta McCracken, of Bucyrus, and Harriet McCracken, of Honolulu, Hawaii.

of attacks by the German newspapers. It has been predicted his resignation would be forced by the emperor.

VERSION FROM PARIS.

Paris, May 13.—The French trenches southwest of Fort Douaumont and positions to the north of the Thiaumont farm were violently bombarded yesterday, according to official report of the French war office issued today. The report says that all of the German attacks were repulsed, the enemy sustaining serious losses. On the left bank of the Meuse artillery combats continue uninterrupted.

UNION LABOR ISSUE CAST OUT BY VOTE

Methodists Hear Partial Report from Committee on Episcopacy.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 13.—By a vote of 417 to 280, the Methodist general conference eliminated that part of the report of the commission on social service which declared that a preference should be given union labor in all matters affecting employment "insofar as its methods are just and insofar as the rights of unorganized men are not infringed upon."

The partial report of the committee on episcopacy concerning the question of efficacy of the bishops "recommended the retirement of Bishop Earl Cranston, of Washington, and John W. Hamilton, of Boston, and Joseph C. Hartzell, a missionary bishop of Africa, because they have reached the retirement age, and Missionary Bishop Isaac B. Scott, of Liberia, and Merriman C. Harris, of Korea, who applied for retirement. The committee recommended the reappointment of the other members of the board of bishops. The committee will hold a special meeting tonight at which it is expected an agreement will be reached on the number of new bishops to be chosen in an endeavor to report Monday and begin balloting Tuesday.

Members of the Methodist Episcopal church who play cards, dance and attend the theater will no longer be liable to expulsion if recommendations made by a sub-committee of the general conference which has been considering the question of amusements are adopted by the committee on the state of the church and later by the conference. The report was offered to the main committee late yesterday and after an acrimonious discussion action was deferred until Monday.

By a vote of ten to eight the sub-committee recommended the elimination from the Book of Discipline of the clause prohibiting those amusements and offered as a substitute an additional paragraph in which warning is made against the diversions. The effect of the proposed change is to remove the absolute prohibition, but to place the church on record as still strongly opposed to these forms of amusements. A minority report was submitted advising the retention of the paragraph as it now stands.

It was maintained by those favoring removal of the restriction that the penalty now provided is not enforced in any church and that the effect upon young people will be much greater if a provision that cannot be enforced is withdrawn, and a general warning issued that the church does not sanction "dancing, playing at games of chance, attending theaters, horse races, circuses, dancing parties, or patronizing dancing schools."

Opposition to the change is based on the allegation that it means the church is "letting down the bars."

ganizations, lawyers and other professional men, city officials and city employes and 10,000 members of the national guard in uniform and thousands of veterans of the Spanish war compose the long column. The lawyers are led by twenty justices of the supreme court.

Sixty-four Divisions.

The marchers were divided into sixty-four divisions. The hour set for the start was 9:30 a. m. and it is expected that the last division will not reach the disbanding point until 10:20 o'clock tonight.

Demands for a place in the parade so greatly exceeded the time and space that the promoters were compelled to reject 60,000 applications. Beginning at the Battery at the southern tip of Manhattan island, the divisions fell in line at intervals all the way up Lower Broadway, Center and Lafayette streets and Fifth avenue, nearly to the reviewing stand erected in Madison Square. There from a stand containing thousands of spectators, Major General Leonard Wood, Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, commandant of the New York navy yard, and Mayor Mitchel reviewed the parade.

Opponents Combat It.

Anti-preparedness bodies such as the women's peace party and the socialists endeavored to offset the preparedness spirit by circulating among the spectators circulars. Across Fifth avenue from the reviewing stand the woman's party hung out a banner with the inscription: "There are only 100,000 of you. You are not the only patriots. Two million families, 500,000 mine workers and organized labor of America are opposed to what you and Wall street are marching for. Are you sure you are right?

FOR GREATER FORT WAYNE

Would Have Greater City.

The rapid growth of Fort Wayne and the prospect that a vast industrial development now in progress will within the next year or two add many thousands of inhabitants to the city's population constitute a practical argument for territorial expansion and provision on a large scale for future growth.

Coupled with this purpose is the wish to make provision for the development of the boulevard system contemplated in the plans prepared several years ago by Landscape Engineer George Kessler, of St. Louis, and to give more symmetrical outline to the platting of the city. This latter purpose will, if realized aid to keep thoroughfares straight and make all city improvements and the extension of municipal utilities a matter of greater ease.

The council's sub-committee will probably work out the plans for expansion in conjunction with the board of works, the city engineering department and the county commissioners, and make a report to the council.

WILL MOVE SOON INTO LARGER HEADQUARTERS

L. E. Rose, the manufacturer of band instruments who for the past four years has been located on the second floor of the building at Washington and Clinton streets, will move soon. He will occupy the first floor and basement of the same building, which at the present time is undergoing extensive remodeling.

With business booming, everywhere, Mr. Rose has also experienced a big increase in his business, necessitating larger quarters where more men can be employed. New machinery will be installed and his business will be operated on a larger scale in all departments.

The building is owned by the Dental Supply company, of Fort Wayne, and was formerly occupied by the Cope Printing company.

SOFT SNAPS.

MRS. SCHOTT-GEARY TO WED ONCE MORE

If the local courts do not conceive that they are being monkeyed with in frivolous fashion, the marriage of Mrs. Esther Schott-Geary and Carroll W. Geary will be annulled and then if there are no obstacles and neither Mrs. Schott-Geary and Edward W. Schott stops to take a sober second thought these two will for the fourth time do the bridal march to the altar of Hymen and again unite their hearts and hands. Mrs. Scott-Geary and Mr. Geary procured a license and were married Thursday night by Justice Henry J. Grabner. It now transpires that the pair have decided they are not so well mated as they had anticipated they were likely to be and that Mr. Geary is going to leave the city, after the marriage has been annulled, if it can be. Following this Ed Schott and Esther will try it again. She has married and divorced him but three times and thinks there is reason to hope for a happy union. Bridegroom Geary, ex-Husband Schott and Mrs. Schott-Geary held a conference at the Schott-Geary home, 1130 High street, Friday night, and planned this felicitous program. Following the wedding ceremony Thursday night Schott went to the Schott-Geary home and undertook to break up the house-keeping of the newly-wed couple, but was tossed into the street by his husky successor in Mrs. Schott-Geary's affections. The police were called, but no arrests were made.

BIGGEST BALLOT ON RECORD.

Philadelphia Voter Must Place 44 Marks to Record Wishes.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 13.—Pennsylvania voters will be handed the largest primary ticket in the history of the uniform primary law when they go to the polling places to vote next Tuesday. This year candidates for president, auditor general and state treasurer and delegates and alternates at large will be voted for at a state-wide primary for the first time.

In Philadelphia a voter must place 44 marks on his ballot in order to vote for all the party candidates and record his wishes regarding the proposed $14,000,000 municipal loan. It is feared at the state capital that the chances of any counties reporting official counts before next Saturday are small.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result; and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

STRANGE ASSAULT PUZZLES OFFICERS

Mrs. Clara Deter, Near Lagrange, Is Found Bound and Gagged on Floor in Her Home.

Lagrange, Ind., May 13.—Sheriff Minnick and Prosecutor Wade have not yet been able to obtain a detailed account from Mrs. Clara Deter of the two men who invaded her home near this city, bound and gagged her and left her on the floor of her kitchen. The assault on Mrs. Deter took place, as near as can be learned, about 3 o'clock in the morning, the two men arriving at her country home in an automobile. While there are several theories of the assault none of them is definite enough to justify decisive action by the authorities. The woman has been in a terribly distraught state of mind since the officers went to her home and released her and has not given them any information on which they can proceed. It is said, however, that arrests may soon be made. Mrs. Deter, whose husband has been lately separated from her because of domestic trouble and staying at the home of his brother a few miles distant, was in her residence with her two little daughters, neither of whom knew anything of the outrage until 5 o'clock in the morning, when one of them went downstairs and discovered her mother helpless on the floor. She notified Morton Gowenn, a neighbor, who telephoned Sheriff Minnick. The sheriff, Deputy Kunce and Prosecutor Wade went at once to the house. Mrs. Deter is constantly under the care of a physician. Mr. and Mrs. Deter were married several months ago, each having been previously married. Mrs. Deter formerly resided in Missouri.

He was only about a square from his residence when the fatal illness overtook him. He knocked at the Dr. C. W. Fry residence and asked for Dr. Fry when Mrs. Fry answered the door. On receiving the information that Dr. Fry was out of town, he asked Mrs. Fry to call Dr. Galbreath. By the time Dr. Galbreath arrived Dr. Hague had expired. Dr. Thomas Henry Hague was born May 21, 1859, in Staley Bridge, England, to Thomas and Betty Hague. At the age of eleven he came to the United States with his parents and lived at South Bend. VAN WERT HAS PEEPING TOM

Van Wert, Ohio, May 13.—Complaints made to police officers indicate that a real "Peeping Tom" is active in Van Wert, as in three instances in the last two days residents have called officers to hunt for a man whom they have seen looking into houses and otherwise acting in a suspicious manner. Two of the calls came to the police from houses in widely different parts of town and at several hours apart. In both cases the description of the man was the same. So far he has made no serious attempts to break into houses or commit any crime other than doing his peeping stunt. The police are making every effort to locate the "Peeping Tom" and put an end to his activities.

Mr. Michel made his way to Lagro, where he had left his horse and buggy and was driving homeward when overtaken by the sheriff. He was under the delusion that he was buying horses, the officials said.

CARRY THE FIGHT ON FLIES TO THE BARN

Ninety per cent. of all flies are born in stable refuse. Keep the stable clean.

BY DR. JEAN DAWSON
America's sMost Famous Woman Fly Fighter.

To make your home or your hometown a "flyless city" you must make the fight against flies a neighborhood fight.

After swatting flies in the house and trapping them in the yard, start a campaign to clean up barns, stables and alleyways.

You may not have a barn or a stable, but there is sure to be one in the neighborhood. If it is not kept "flyless" your efforts at home will go for naught.

The uncovered manure pile is the most prolific source of the fly nuisance, for 90 per cent. of all flies breed in horse manure.

In this the eggs are laid, on it the maggots feed, and over it the fully developed flies crawl, picking up disease germs which they later bring into your home.

Manure should never be left to accumulate in a pile against the barn. It rots the walls of the barn and furnishes a breeding place for man's most dangerous enemy.

If the owner of the barn or stable does not take any interest, make it your business as a taxpayer to see that it is hauled away at least once a week. Also see that until hauled away it is kept in covered disposal boxes.

Make it your duty and arouse your neighbors' interest to see that these receptacles are frequently inspected; to see that they are properly covered and that the contents are not being scattered around the alleyways.

It has been found that one pound of stable refuse will frequently contain more than 1,000 house flies or "typhoid" flies.

DAILY BIBLE READINGS FOR THE HOME

John 17:18-26.

18 As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world.

19 And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth.

20 Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word;

21 That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.

22 And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one:

23 I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me.

24 Father, I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

25 O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee: but I have known thee, and these have known that thou hast sent me.

26 And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it; that the love wherewith thou hast loved me may be in them, and I in them.

We are to set ourselves apart from sin, that our testimony may make disciples whose Christlikeness and unity will convict the world. To make efficient He has promised us His glory. The skeptical world awaits for a united church whose life and word will be with resistless authority. This kind cometh only through much prayer.

Fort Wayne Needs 3,600 Homes.

It is a most extraordinary occasion in the experience of any city to find itself confronted by the immediate need for the erection of more than three thousand new homes to provide for the coming of thousands of new citizens who will take up their residence within its confines as the result of the expansion of a single industry. Yet that is precisely what Fort Wayne is facing, and we do not believe all of us have yet grasped the magnitude of the movement or the seriousness of the problem it presents. For that reason the address of Mr. Charles B. Fitch before the members of the Real Estate exchange Friday evening was especially valuable and especially important.

Mr. Fitch was referring particularly to the development of the Fort Wayne works of the General Electric company, in addition to the natural and steady growth of Fort Wayne, and he took occasion to carefully reduce his proposition to cold figures that make it startlingly impressive. He detailed the plans of the General Electric to utilize the labor of 3,500 employes in Fort Wayne in addition to its present army of industrial operatives, and this means an addition of 14,000 people to the city's population. With it, too, will come the normal growth from other sources, so that within the next eighteen months an addition to Fort Wayne of at least 18,000 people may be fairly expected. On any reasonable base of calculation, Mr. Fitch shows, some 3,600 houses will be needed to care for the new population. At this time there are comparatively few empty houses in Fort Wayne. There is coming such a scramble for housing places as this city has never seen, and, as Mr. Fitch pointed out, the problem is one which may well enlist the immediate and active cooperation of all public spirited citizens in its solution.

The plea of Mr. Fitch for a deeper civic interest in things quite apart from the selfish consideration of money-getting is one which we may well heed. Splendid as are the things Fort Wayne has done, the opportunity for more and better work of the same sort was never so great as today. With the providing of homes for increased population must come more provision for some of the other good things in life which mortals require in addition of a mere place in which to live. Happily the exhortation of men like Mr. Fitch and Mr. Hunting in their remarks Friday evening are helping to give Fort Wayne the larger vision of opportunity that will inspire it to the one thing that is better than the larger vision. That one thing is actual achievement.

Ernest P. Bicknell, director of the American Red Cross, supplements the statement by Ex-President Taft setting forth the fact that much difficulty has been experienced with Great Britain in getting Red Cross supplies through the blockade for the use of Red Cross units in Germany and Austria-Hungary. Here, at least, is a point on which there should be no occasion for quibbling. Even half-way consideration of simple humanity requires that no time be lost in forcing relief for a situation of this character. Heckling and haggling over a question of this sort is intolerable.

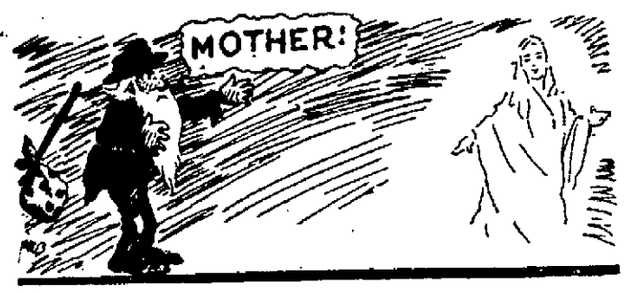
In the death of James Kelly McCracken there passes not only a long-time and widely known citizen of Fort Wayne, but a man who in his earlier and more active years was conspicuous in the railway world. This was true both as a builder of new lines and of his connection with the passenger department of what is now the Pennsylvania system. As telegraph operator, soldier, passenger agent, railroad constructor and insurance man his life was an active and a useful one. He was a kindly, generous man of fine character whose memory will be treasured by those who knew him.

New emphasis has just been placed by the public health service on the fact that the origin of many cases of tuberculosis has been traced to bad lodging houses and generally unsanitary surroundings of living quarters. It is a phase of the war on the white plague that cannot be too prominently kept in mind, and there is happily a full realization of the fact in the best work that is now being done. Curing the cases will be wholly unnecessary when by the enforcement of better living conditions we are able to prevent them.

Down near Richmond is a farmer who owns a dog that is heralded as the champion mushroom hunter of Wayne county, and the canine is said to be tremendously successful in locating the toothsome fungi. So many of us hesitate to accept human judgment as to which are the edible varieties and which are the poisonous sorts that we are willing for that dog to make the selections for himself, but not for us.

The one certainty in that Mexican situation is always its uncertainty, as you may have already noticed.

MOTHER IMMORTAL.



She said, when I left her protection,
For the world I was longing to learn;
As our lips met in parting affection,
"I shall always await your return!"

How oft in my dreams I'm returning
Through the long, weary miles and the years,
And my soul fills with infinite yearning,
As my brow becomes moist with her tears!

Once again in your arms you enfold me,
And I see your sweet care-furrowed face;
Once again, mother darling, you hold me
In that heart-breaking farewell embrace.

Gentle mother, your face is beside me
And before me, wherever I roam,
And I know that, whatever betide me,
You'll be waiting for me to come home.

On the hitherward side of the portal
That divideth the sinless from sin,
I shall wait for you, Mother Immortal,
Till the Angel of Death lets me in.

—CHARLES B. DRISCOLL.

NEW GASOLINE SOURCE

(Indianapolis News)

A large eastern public utility company with extensive natural gas holdings in the Cincinnati district recently announced in its annual statement that three plants in its field were being erected for the manufacture of gasoline directly from gas. Another concern with holdings in Wyoming is said to be planning extensive addition to its facilities for utilizing gas in this manner. The idea, oil men say, is not new, but has never been profitable because of the competition of the low price gasoline produced from oil. The present high price of gasoline is expected to change the situation. Gasoline is made from gas by putting the gas under a high pressure which reduces it to liquid. So produced it is said to be highly volatile, and especially suitable for automobile fuel, selling for several cents higher than the gasoline produced by ordinary methods. From 1,000 cub feet of gas, it is said, about five gallons of gasoline can be made. The gas is not affected by the extraction of the gasoline and can be used afterward for fuel and light.

While the prevailing high price of gasoline is largely due to extraordinary conditions which will probably end at the cessation of the war, the increased demand due to larger consumption brought by the development of the automobile industry will probably operate to maintain prices permanently at a higher level than the normal before the war. This is what the gas men are calculating upon. Expensive equipment would not be installed unless there were prospects that prices would continue high enough to make the investment profitable. The Rittman process, by which a larger amount of gasoline can be obtained from a given amount of oil than by the methods in general use, is already said to be successfully employed. There are still in existence extensive natural gas fields whose owners will probably engage in the manufacture of gasoline if the experiments of the pioneer companies prove profitable.

WANTS ALL THE RED-HEADS

Alexandria, Ind., May 11.—Sheriff Billy Black, of Madison county, probably will be elected organizer of the Association of Indiana Red Heads when it holds its first meeting at Indianapolis this summer. Sheriff Black has sent out several letters to red-headed persons asking for a list of the red heads in each county. Application for membership compels the applicant to give his name, age, height, color of eyes, occupation and nationality.

The first county organization probably will be formed in Madison county under the direction of Sheriff Black. Sheriff Black has requested all red heads in the state to get in communication with him regarding the summer session.

THOUGHTS DIRECTED TOWARDS THE MOTHERS

Sunday Will Be Universally Observed as the Annual Mother's Day.

Universally, Sunday will be observed as Mother's Day, a day when every one will pay due respect to his mother, whether she be dead or alive. The second Sunday in May has been set aside every year as the time when people can do themselves credit and bring happiness to their mothers by their celebration of the day. It can be observed through some distinct act of kindness, visit, letter, gift or tribute to the mother to whom grateful affection is due.

The observation of Mothers' day was begun years ago by its founder, Miss Anna Jarvis. On May 10, 1913, a resolution passed the house of representatives and the senate, commending Mother's Day for observance by the house and senate, the president of the United States and his cabinet and all other heads of government departments. The following year a resolution was introduced in the house of representatives and which was agreed to, that the president of the United States should designate through an annual proclamation the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day. For several years it has been the custom of governors of several states to issue a Mother's Day proclamation.

The red carnation is the badge to be worn by those people whose mother is yet among the living. The white carnation signifies that she has passed away.

OBITUARY.

The following obituary taken from the Plymouth Democrat will be of sorrowful interest to many Fort Wayne acquaintances:

Daniel McCarty was born in Cork, Ireland, Aug. 14, 1835, and came to this country in 1862. He was married to Miss May Gormaan Feb. 9, 1864, and they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary two years ago. To this union were born eleven children, five having preceded him to eternity. The wife and following children survive: Mrs. William Hood, Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Peter Miller, Plymouth, Ind.; Mrs. LaMott Dougherty, Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Joseph Ocdey, Fort Wayne; Mrs. Edward McCarty and Miss Hannah McCarty, at the family home; also, four grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Johanna Wilkinson, of Noble county.

Mr. McCarty was one of the early pioneers of Marshall county. He had taken up a residence there when the country was practically a wilderness and forest. Amid constant effort and honest toil he became a very prosperous farmer. He was an estimable citizen, a zealous Christian, and a kind friend and neighbor, striving constantly for the betterment of humanity. He departed this life very peacefully May 1, 1916.

"I LIVE HERE; ASK ME" GREETING TO GUESTS

Buttons to Voice Friendly Greeting to Centennial Guests in June.

When the crowds pour into Fort Wayne on Monday, June 5, for the great Centennial celebration, thousands of the visitors will begin to ask questions. Some will want to know where the pageant grounds are, and when the show opens and what the price is; others will want to know how to get to the exposition grounds and when the big free shows are on; some will ask where the woman's building is; others will ask for information about the floral parade; some will seek information concerning Judge Taft's speech; others will ask how to get to Old Fort park or Harmar's ford; some will want to know where the relic room is to be found; others will ask where the home-comers are to meet for their sight-seeing trip; some will seek the Centennial headquarters; others will want to know where to find the secretary of the pageant committee; some will want to know where to buy tickets for the pageant; others will ask, "Where is the entrance to the exposition, and what does it cost?" Some will want to know the headquarters of their lodge; others will ask for information about the fraternal parade; some will ask about the band contests, while others will simply want to know "which way is north."

Says General Chairman E. C. Miller: "We want every citizen of Fort Wayne to constitute himself a committee of one to be of the greatest service to our guests during these six days. The association is going to procure a large number of buttons to be given out for our people to wear by way of announcement that they are willing and anxious to give all kinds of information to the thousands who will be here for the week. These buttons will read: 'I Live Here —Ask Me.' This means that every citizen who wears one of the buttons should be prepared to answer the questions which the visitors are bound to ask. I find that a great many of the people of Fort Wayne are at sea concerning the details of the great coming Centennial, although we have endeavored, through the kindness of the newspapers, to give out every detail of information as fast as things are known to be positively assured. We have not indulged in 'hot air' claims at any time, and the reports in the newspapers have been carefully written so that the people may know exactly what has been going on. I wish, therefore, that the people of Fort Wayne would begin earnestly to study the details of this great coming celebration so as to be of the best service to our guests and at the same time, to get the most out of it themselves."

Any inquiry sent to the secretary of the Centennial Association, Commercial Club, will be answered through the newspapers by the publicity committee.

A DISTINCTIVE SALAD.

A very pretty salad for a luncheon can be arranged by making a tomato jelly for its principal feature. Dissolve the gelatine as you would for ordinary lemon jelly. Into this put tomato juice. To prepare this, stew a can of tomatoes in a sanitary enameled ware saucepan until the solid part of the tomato is dissolved. Strain this through a sieve. After mixing with the gelatine, add flavoring to suit. The small enameled ware baking tins bought for individual cakes make very pretty and satisfactory molds. Arrange lettuce leaves on each plate, putting the mold of tomato jelly in the middle. Then pile about this a nest of either watereress or the little plant known as "field-salad." Either a good French dressing or a mayonnaise may be used.

SPORT COATS FOR EVERYBODY NOW

By Betty Brown.

The "Flapper" has a sports coat of her own an dit isn't at all like the sports coat of her big sister. The "Flapper's" coat as designed by Mme. Marguerite, who has originated so many charming styles for girls, is made with a quaint Empire waist line and an oddly pointed cape collar. It is made of navy blue and white striped glove silk, and in this sketch at the right you'll notice how cleverly striped silk can be used to trim itself.

The sports coat at the left is also a Marguerite design. The broad striped glove silk is used and the horizontal bars seem especially adaptable to the Norfolk style; the narrow sash wound loosely and gracefully at the waistline gives it a bit of style all its own.

American Soldier in Mexico Needs More Than That to Subsist.

Washington, D. C., May 13.—If the American soldiers had been forced to live on "the fat of the land" while on their punitive expedition into Mexico they would have found it decidedly lean and would have had occasion to complain bitterly of the commissary, for although the neighboring republic has within its bordere an extraordinary variety of food products, including most of the vegetables, fruits and cereals grown in both the temperate zone and the tropics, there is neither variety nor abundance in its northern states. A bulletin on culinary practices in the southern republic, issued by the National Geographic society in Washington, says:

"Since the days of the Montezuma's, Mexico's staff of life has taken the form of tortillas, made of Indian corn, which is indigenous to the country. The preparation of the tortilla, is the work of the Indian women, who first boil the grain and then, while adding water, grind it to a stiff paste on a metate, or flat mortar. This paste usually is moulded with the hands into thin cakes and is cooked much after the fashion of the 'hoe cake' of Dixieland.

"The frijole, or Mexican bean, frequently dried in fat, is another staple, both when served alone and when constituting an important ingredient of the famous chile con carne, a sort of goulash, compounded, customarily, of beef and beans, with a plentiful seasoning of chili, the Mexican pepper.

"The hot tamale has made its way across the border, but it does not have the same flavor when taken from a can as when the particles of meat are seasoned with pepper, mixed with corn meal, wrapped in corn 'shucks,' boiled until thoroughly cooked, peeled out of and eaten from the shuck.

"One of the odd dishes of northern Mexico is the pipian, made of finely ground squash-seed, boiled in a sauce pan.

"While the tortillas, frijoles, chile con carne, and tamales, 'washed down' with liberal potations of pulque, may be considered the foundation of his menu, the peon of southern Mexico has various appetizers which are unknown to the peon of the north. There is, for example, the 'water wheat,' which is not exactly what its name implies, but the eggs of flies. The native Mexican eats his water wheat with the same epicurean relish that the Chinese mandarin eats his expensive bird-nest, the Central African his raw hippopotamus, the Canton merchant his stall-fed dog, and the West Indian his palm worms stewed in fat. The water-wheat fields are ponds in which the peon places bundles of reeds a few feet apart, so that their tops are just above the surface. On these rods or rushes the insects deposit their eggs in incredible numbers. The bundles are then removed and the 'crop' is shaken off. The eggs, resembling fine fish-roe, are made into small cakes and are sold in the markets, to be eaten either as we eat cheese or mixed with corn meal and fowl eggs. The insects themselves, which are about the size of our house-flies, are also eaten, the method of preparation being to pound them into a paste and boil with corn husks.

"The fruits of southern Mexico are numerous and some of them are delicious. One of the most unusual is the papaya or melon zapote, which grows on a tree and often weighs as much as 20 pounds. It has characteristics which link it to the cantaloupe, the pumpkin and the watermelon, and in addition contains considerable pepsin, so that the diner may take his aid-to-digestion and his dessert at one and the same time."

Ratan Devi Not a Drink or a Snake, But Lady Who Sings Far-East Melodies.

New York, May 12.—New York—the big, bored, blase town—has a new thrill. It is—Ratan Devi.

No, not a new cocktail, cigarette, or cosmetic.

Ratan Devi is a singer.

Of English birth and a student and exponent of folk-songs, she married Dr. Ananda Coomaraswamy, of Ceylon.

In the act Ratan Devi begins playing the tamboura, which makes a sort of unchanging drone more like the humming of bees or the twanging of a gigantic jewsharp than anything else.

And then come the songs. They have a strange and haunting effect. They seem filled with the melancholy of the far east.

There are shades of sound that are not employed in our songs. At times the melody rises to a wail: at others it dies away into a mere whisper of longing or passion or regret.

Then the lights go up and New York shakes itself out of its trance, out of its dream of India and Hindu mystery, and passes out into the noisy, busy streets.

(P. S.—Ratan Devi and her spouse have two little sons who seem all Hindu. Their idea of a howling good time is to be allowed to sit some place quietly and think and think and think).

PREPARE REPORT ON SURVEY

Members of Committee on Richmond Have Completed Investigation.

Richmond, Ind., May 13.—The field of Richmond's industrial survey having been completed, a committee is preparing a report from the figures compiled. On the committee are Miss Adelaide Steele Baylor, of Indianapolis; F. G. Bonser, of Columbia university; John A. Lapp, of Indianapolis, and C. A. Winslow and W. F. Book, of the state board of education. R. J. Leonard, of Indiana university, has been directing the field work. The committee, it is said, favors the extension of the period of compulsory education for fourteen years to sixteen years, regardless of the grade pupil has reached. In connection with the survey J. Young people need clear complexions

If you find yourself "left out" because of a poor skin, and want a clear, fresh complexion, use Resinol Soap at least once a day. Wash thoroughly with a warm, creamy lather of it, then rinse the face with plenty of cold water.

It does not often take many days of such regular care with Resinol Soap to show an improvement, because the Resinol medication soothes and refreshes the skin, while the perfectly pure soap is cleansing it.

Resinol Soap

should be aided by a little Resinol Ointment, in severe or stubborn cases. Resinol Soap and Ointment are sold by all druggists. For trial free, write to Dept. 26-R, Resinol, Baltimore.

FRANCE REFUSES TO EXPORT WAR ORPHANS

None Available for Adoption in Common Acceptation of Term.

Paris, April 25.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—"France is not going to export any of its war orphans," said Monsieur Alfred Croiset, head of the Faculty of Letters of the Sorbonne, explaining the participation of Americans in the work of the orphanage of the armies of which he is president. "I know a statement was published recently to the effect that 150,000 American families had offered to adopt orphans of the war. The number was a little exaggerated, and the word adoption used in its general sense was misleading. Orphans of the war, so far as it is possible, are to remain in their families, especially when the mother is living. Where there are no immediate relatives to take care of them, they are to be placed in other French families and ultimately will be cared for by the state until their majority; none of them are available for adoption under the common acceptation of the term.

"Most of the Americans who have expressed the desire to participate in this work understand this point quite well; in fact in our correspondence the majority of the letters from the United States express the desire that the children which they agree to support should remain in their families. The supposition that there are 150,000 American families wanting to take care of orphans arose no doubt from the fact that we were asked by Americans as to about how many war orphans there were needing assistance, and we put the number at 150,000. This, of course, does not comprise all of the war orphans. They were estimated recently in a debate in the senate by Senator Jenouvrier at 800,000 which of course included half orphans, but a great proportion of these will never become the objects of charitable work and the exact number may never be precisely determined.

"Committees have been organized in a great many American cities to receive propositions of families, not to adopt orphans, but to support them in their own surroundings for a period of two years, which is supposed will go beyond the end of the war and carry them to the time when the measures taken by the government for the care of orphans become effective. All the people in France connected with this movement have been deeply touched by the generous ardour of Americans in this work. We have received many thousand letters, the numbers are increasing every day, from families who want to enter into direct communication with orphans and start correspondence with them so as to follow them until such time as they need no further help.

"The plan of the orphanage of the army is to bring these children up without making them feel that they are objects of charity; without withdrawing them from their usual environment except when that environment is bad. We support them in their own homes with contributions of money, clothing, books, pending the organization of official means of providing for them. We are aided largely in this work by pupils of the public schools. There are about 40,000 different schools in France, and the children of each school contribute their sous for the support of an orphan. Eventually each one of these schools will have a ward as its charge."

10 Years to Make Rose Petal Jelly

Miss Emo Edwards with glass of rose petal jelly.

Experimenting for ten years to produce a palatable jelly from rose leaves is the record established by Mrs. Marie Schumann, of Los Angeles, Col. That she has at last hit upon the exact ingredients necessary for a delicious culinary conceit will be testified to by many who have sampled the new jelly.

Mrs. Schumann has proved that rose petals have an actual food value. Three varieties of the rose jelly were recently exhibited, one from mixed petals, one from Marie Henriettas and another from Ragged Robin roses. The people who were served with samples smacked their lips and said "thank you" for a second helping.

From 40 to 50 roses are used in each glass of jelly. No artificial coloring is needed to produce the dark wine shade which adds to the tempting qualities of the delicacy. The recipe, which took long years to perfect, has not as yet been given out by the California kitchen experimenter.

GUARD FOILS JAIL DELIVERY

Rescues Jailer and Captures Five Men Who Had Escaped From Cells

Danville, Ill., May 13.—Five men overpowered the jailer at the county jail here, after they had sawed their way out of their cells and were about to escape from the building, when they were surprised by Robert Meade, the death watch over Big John Murphy, who is condemned to die May 26. Meade had heard the cry of the jailer when he was attacked by the prisoners. He drove the men back to their cells at the point of a revolver. The ringleader was Harry McDonald, an alleged safe blower, who is to be tried soon.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL

The BIG line, the latest novelties, the lowest prices, SURE to please you.

YES. We do PAPER HANGING, do it right and charge no more than other stores.

Wall Paper is a side issue in one corner of most stores, we sell nothing else. We are specialists, and if in doubt what to select, we can give you suggestions that are worth something. If one man sells better wall paper than others at the same price or the same quality at a lower price, there will be a beaten path to that man's door. The people of Fort Wayne and surrounding country have been making this path to our door for the last 45 years and we ask you to help make a new one to our present location, opposite Palace Theater.

Chicago, May 13.—Wheat prices rallied today from an early setback that was, caused by rains southwest and by a forecast of additional moisture. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅞c off to ⅛c up, with July at $1.16 to $1.16¼, and September at $1.15⅞ to $1.16, were followed by a moderate general declin eand then a recovery in full.

Corn fluctuated with wheat. After opening ⅝c lower to ⅛c advance, the market hardened a little around.

UNITED WE STAND!

18,000 People Will Locate in Ft. Wayne Within Next 18 Months, Says C. B. Fitch

Eighteen thousand people will move to Fort Wayne and make their homes here within the next eighteen months, according to Charles B. Fitch, in a paper which he read Friday evening before the Fort Wayne Real Estate exchange. Mr. Fitch's paper was as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Fort Wayne Real Estate Exchange:

I congratulate you upon what you have accomplished in the short time since the organization of this exchange. I understand that the purpose of your organization is primarily to standardize the ethics of your profession, as practiced in Fort Wayne, and to improve the conditions of your business. By co-operation you would be able to adopt reasonable and uniform rates of commission and render better service to both seller and buyer. You have wisely given wide publicity to your motives and intentions in this regard. The public have given your organization its stamp of approval. They know now that they can get honest service more dependable than ever before.

Having accomplished so much in a little more than a year and having learned that each one of your associates is a mighty good fellow, anxious to be fair and honest if permitted by fair competition, you begin to see visions of greater possibilities and will no doubt enlarge the functions of your exchange.

Interested in Fort Wayne.

You are particularly interested in the growth of Fort Wayne and by virtue of your business or as someone has well said, your profession, it is your province, yes more, it is your bounded duty to devise ways and means for the growth, beautification and development of our city.

You come in contact with those who want to sell and those who want to buy property. You are the first to see the tendencies of people's desires and the urgent need of the community. You count the pulsations in the arteries of trade and are the first to detect an error in conditions. You know in advance of all others the ills of business. You are familiar with symptoms, whether it be a high blood pressure, congestion or neuritis. You know the remedy and should take the initiative in its application.

CHARLES B. FITCH.

Just now Fort Wayne is threatened with congestion. The natural remedy is expansion.

There are several manufacturing concerns in our city that are growing rapidly. They are in need of more employes to meet the increasing demands for their products. I shall not attempt to enumerate, but will confine my remarks to one institution which I trust will arouse your enthusiasm and impel you to immediate action.

I refer to the Electric Light works on Broadway, owned and operated by the General Electric company, of New York. This manufacturing plant was first started in Fort Wayne in 1882 and has been a most potent factor in the growth of our city. You are all familiar with its history.

Its mammoth buildings now have a floor space of 425,000 square feet, giving employment to 2,625 people. The payroll is $160,000 per month and their sales amount to $5,000,000 per annum.

Immense as these figures show this business to be, the concern is unable, with its present facilities, to take care of the orders it is able to secure, and so they have arranged to increase the capacity of the plant.

They have recently let contracts for the construction of five buildings and the work is now under way, with a guaranty that the buildings will be ready for occupancy by January 1, 1917.

I am sure you will be interested to know something about these buildings.

One is 525 feet long, 75 feet wide; five stories and basement.

One is 500 feet long, 75 feet wide: five stories and basement.

One is 160 feet long, 60 feet wide; three stories and basement.

One is 150 feet long, 75 feet wide; three stories and basement.

One is 60 feet long, 40 feet wide: two stories and basement.

These buildings are to be fire proof, built of reinforced concrete faced with brick. The two large buildings will be able to carry a load of 400 pounds to the square foot on the first floor, 300 pounds on the second, 250 pounds on the third and fourth and 200 pounds on the fifth floor.

In the construction of these buildings there will be used 1,200 tons of structural steel, 1,800 tons of reinforcing steel bars and 60,000 barrels of cement. There will be used about 35,000 yards of concrete. In all there will be more than 3,000 car loads of material used in the construction of these buildings.

These five buildings will have a floor space of nearly 600,000 square feet and will accommodate 3,500 employes, to be added to the present enrollment.

The great General Electric company has faith in the continuance of prosperity in this country or they would not have attempted this wonderful expansion. Assuming that business will continue to be good, this large number of additional employes will be required within the next twelve or fifteen months.

Our population is about four times the number of factory employes. On this basis this increase in the number of employes at the plant will add 14,000 people to our city. Add to this the normal growth from other influences and we must expect an increase in the population of Fort Wayne of 18,000 in the next eighteen months. Think of it. You must furnish houses for 18,000 more people who will come to Fort Wayne to live within the next eighteen months.

Eighteen thousand people would make a pretty good sized city. It is more than the combined population of Columbia City and Huntington. It is more than the total population of Auburn, Garrett, Aville, Albion and Kendallville combined. And this number of people are coming to Fort Wayne within the next eighteen months. They are going to stay here. They are going to live here. They must have houses to live in.

It will require 3,600 houses to comfortably take care of these people. There is no surplus of vacant houses in Fort Wayne at the present time. There are some vacant houses for rent and a few new houses for sale, but there are no more than the normal number required to meet the demand of our home people who desire to change their location and the demand of new comers who regularly and continuously add to our city's steady growth.

The General Electric company, with its hundred million of assets, is not a speculator and is not buying real estate for investment alone. In addition to the ground on Wall street, where the five buildings are now being built, occupying only a small portion of her Wall street property, this great company recently purchased fifteen acres of land east of the St. Mary's river, south of the Pennsylvania railroad, extending to Taylor street. It is reasonable to suppose that the General Electric company bought this vast acreage of ground for the purpose of still further expanding her facilities.

The General Electric company have large factories in other cities and we hope that, as she further expands, she will favor Fort Wayne and continue to build more and more right here, rather than elsewhere.

How soon she will make further additions here will depend somewhat upon how readily Fort Wayne responds to the newly created demand for houses.

It is up to you.

The growth, beautification and development of a city is always in proportion to the public spirit of her people. When public spirit lags and becomes dormant the city will stand still or fall back, and when public spirit is revived the city leaps forward. Think of St. Louis, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Buffalo, Detroit and Toledo. Each one of these cities has had her experience in dropping back and going forward. Public spirit has made Cleveland the fifth city in the United States. Public spirit in recent years has pushed St. Louis forward with leaps and bounds. Several years ago Toledo fell back, and when her public spirit was revived, she made a wonderful growth. Cincinnati boomed for a time long ago, but her public spirit waned and she is still on the Ohio river and sometimes under it.

What about public spirit in Fort Wayne? Let us talk about it here among ourselves without saying anything unkind or criticising anyone. What are we doing for the public good or for the benefit of the city, except what accrues to her benefit by reason of our making more money for ourselves?

Just now and for some time past public good in Fort Wayne has been appealing in vain to public spirit to listen and respond to her needs. We all know what her demands are, but we have been too busy with our personal and selfish interests to give attention to public welfare.

Fort Wayne is a splendid city in many respects. Her people are industrious and frugal and are home owners. Our financial institutions are of the best. We never had a bank failure. We are free from labor troubles and everybody who wants to work has a job. Our city and county administrations have been free from scandal with which so many cities are sorely afflicted.

But right here among ourselves let us get down to the consideration of the many things that Fort Wayne hasn't got; the many things she needs and can have and will have just as soon as public spirit is aroused.

Do you know that during the past ten years we haven't done very much for the public good compared with what could have been done? A few public spirited individuals have given generously of their time and money for the addition of parks, play grounds and for the betterment of public health and morals. And to them we owe a debt of gratitude. Public spirit erected the Young Women's Christian association building and will soon erect a building for the Young Men's Christian association. These buildings could have been built years ago if public spirit had been with us.

Many of the things that public good in Fort Wayne needs must be paid for from public funds created by the tax levy. We cannot expect our city administration to spend the public funds for public improvements until the people demand that it be done. If they were to take the initiative and make unusual improvements, no matter how badly such improvements were needed, they would subject themselves to severe criticism, and be accused of extravagance. The public must make the demand for improvements and such demand is prompted by public spirit.

What does Fort Wayne need for public good? A new city hall and police station, a new county jail, motorized fire department in the interest of better protection against fire and conflagration, a modern building code in the interest of fire prevention, a more extensive sewer system in the interest of public convenience and public health, a special tax levy for a fund to be used in a very few years to increase our water supply and meet the demands of our rapidly growing city, more parks and play grounds for the pleasure and comfort of our people and the children, the city to own the river banks and prevent their overflow and to beautify them in conjunction with a more extensive system of boulevards and driveways connecting with parks, and last, but by no means least—we need a convention hall.

I have not attempted to enumerate these needs in the order of their importance and it would be difficult to say which is the most necessary and which deserves your first attention.

These things cannot all be done at once, but we can prepare for their doing and can do at least some of them right away.

Organized as you are you are especially equipped to take the initiative in a campaign to bring about these necessary improvements. It is up to you.

Let it be known that the Fort Wayne Real Estate exchange stands for progress and for the public good in our city; that you are striving for a bigger and better Fort Wayne. If you will give publicity to the needs of our city and the benefits to be derived by making the improvements, you will arouse a public spirit and civic pride such as Fort Wayne has never experienced. Few people of our city realize the possibilities of growth, beautification and further betterment of Fort Wayne.

We have the location, with most excellent shipping facilities.

We have three rivers flowing through our city. Nature made them beautiful, but much of the natural beauty has disappeared underneath the public dump. Get control of the river banks, purchase them, beautify them. Every dollar spent for that purpose would add ten dollars or more to the value of Fort Wayne real estate. Would the investment pay?

Our citizenship is of a high order. There are no bad conditions here to hinder our advancement. We have no handicaps to overcome. Everything is in our favor.

Open up a campaign of education. Tell the people these things they ought to know and they will be interested. They will be interested in public welfare and that will arouse public spirit.

Nineteen sixteen is the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Indiana as a state. Indiana is one of the foremost of the great states of the union. Her former swamp lands and hoop-pole districts are now cultivated farms and gardens. Malaria and ague, with its chills and fever, are unknown and we have no use for quinine. Our death rate of 11.8 per thousand is among the lowest. Indiana is a beehive of industry, covered with a network of railroads. Somewhere within the borders of Indiana is the center of population. She is the recognized home of great modern authors, poets, artists, sculptors, musicians and educators. Somewhere within her borders is the center of education, culture and refinement.

When it was suggested that Indiana should celebrate in honor of her achievement and the high position she holds as a state in the union, Fort Wayne was the first to respond. Public spirit in Fort Wayne, when thoroughly aroused, never fails in its purpose. The Centennial celebration now in preparation in Fort Wayne, promises to be the greatest demonstration of public spirit and hometown pride ever attempted by any city of her size.

Just recently our citizens have been aroused to the public need of a Y. M. C. A. building and public spirit has thoroughly organized committees for the work under the direction of successful and determined men, who mean business. You, of course, favor this project. Treat the company, said it was up to every good citizen to see that the people who are to be brought here by the General Electric are properly housed. "The company ought not to be expected to do it," he continued. "Every man should see the opportunity to invest in real estate. Fort Wayne has wonderful possibilities now and this year. It is not creditable to the city it hasn't a Y. M. C. A. to take care of its young people."

Dam Will Be Built.

"As sure as I live that dam will be built next summer," declared William Breuer, referring to the proposed dam in the St. Joe river to provide a lake to be used for boating, bathing, fishing and other pleasures. "When the lake is completed we will organize a beautifying association for the purpose of beautifying the river banks of the city."

No Place for Convention.

Superintendent Justin N. Study, of the city schools, said he had on his desk an urgent plea from one of the large educational associations that is desirous of holding its convention here next summer, but that because of no convention hall he would have to reply that Fort Wayne has no place in which to hold a convention of such magnitude.

Judge W. J. Vesey said he didn't know there was so much enthusiasm in Fort Wayne.

"Regarding the Y. M. C. A. I hope every man in Fort Wayne will get out and put his shoulder to the wheel," William D. Henderson declared.

Hervey S. McCowen, of Dallas, Texas, was called upon. "I never have been any place where so many opportunities are knocking at the doors as they are here," he said. "I am here because I am interested in the movement for a Y. M. C. A. If you are attempting to make a city it is essential that you have good citizens. Whenever a man is satisfied he's a poor citizen and when a city is satisfied it is a poor city. There is only one other city in the United States that compares with Fort Wayne and that is Springfield, Mass."

Boost for Y. M. C. A.

After urging those present to assist in the Y. M. C. A. campaign and to get back of the various movements that have for their purpose the advancement and betterment of Fort Wayne, Luie H. Moore, president of the exchange, assured Mr. Hunting that the citizens of Fort Wayne would see that the people his company intends to bring here are properly housed.

Worthy of Note

MONROE W. FITCH & SONS have secured the services of L. H. Moore, the president of the Fort Wayne Real Estate Exchange, to handle the selling of the garden tracts south of the interurban, on the Covington road and Ardmore avenue, at CRESTHOLME, and Fitch & Sons will develop the rolling wooded tracts north of the interurban between Taylor street and the Covington road.

Although the survey has not been entirely completed, people are already asking for choice location, and twelve acres have been sold. One of the parties who has already bought of Fitch & Sons at Crestholme is John D. Rauch, at the head of the American Steel Dredge Company of Fort Wayne.

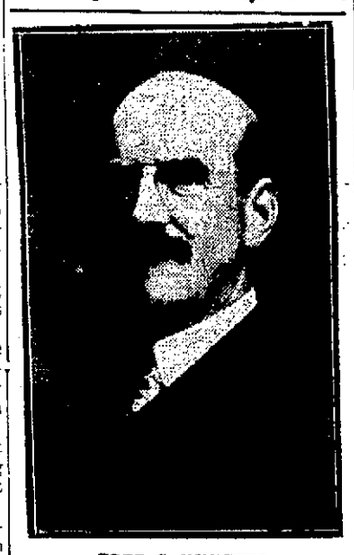
ELECTRIC WORKS TO BRING MANY HERE

F.S. Hunting and C.B. Fitch Speak at Meeting of Realty Men.

"If we have no difficulty in housing our employes which we will bring here during the next year there is no doubt but that officials of the company will order further buildings erected immediately," declared Fred S. Hunting, general manager of the Fort Wayne Electric works, in an address which he delivered at the meeting of the Fort Wayne Real Estate exchange, Friday evening at the Commercial club.



FRED S. HUNTING.

In a paper read by Charles B. Fitch the prediction was made that Fort Wayne will increase 18,000 within the next eighteen months or an average of 1,000 a month. His paper appears elsewhere in this paper. The meeting was largely attended and much enthusiasm was manifested. Both the Y. M. C. A. and convention hall projects were endorsed.

Mr. Hunting's Address.

Mr. Hunting declared that not a single lot of the fifteen acres on South Broadway belonging to the Electric works can be purchased to build a house on because the institution expects to occupy the entire territory.

"I gave away all my thunder to my friend Mr. Fitch, and will not attempt in any way to cover the same ground he so ably went over," he continued. The many advantages of Fort Wayne are within the knowledge of us all, and it has been these things which, I believe, have had the most effect in our officials enlarging the plant here. I have many times brought to their attention these advantages.

"We are now booking throughout the country in our various plants business aggregating $172,000,000. We have a capacity of but $120,000,000, so you can see how easy it will be for us to employ more men when we can complete our buildings. Our output here today is $5,000,000 a year at selling prices. We will double this with the new facilities. That means $10,000,000 a year.

"Some of Fort Wayne's advantages as I see them are the transportation facilities, the fact that Fort Wayne is a distributing center: the fact that Fort Wayne is a city of homes. (I have often said that I believe seventy-five per cent of the people in Fort Wayne own the homes they occupy). It costs $40 to $100 to educate a new employe. If he moves from the city that money is lost to the institution, and it costs that much more to educate a new man for his place. It is unusually fortunate that the real estate men here encourage home owning. The question which most concerns me is, 'Can we house our employes?'

"Many eastern cities are far less desirable for our plants because they cannot care for the employes we would take to their places.

"I feel the need of a large number of homes to be rented. Many of our employes will want to rent homes until they become settled and better know the city. I know you men will take up the work and aid us in this."

Mr. Barrett Speaks.

James M. Barrett, president of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, said it was up to

WILSON ON SIDE TRIP UP THE JAMES RIVER

Newport News, Va., May 13—The yacht Mayflower, with the president and Mrs. Wilson aboard for a week-end cruise, anchored off the shipyard here this morning from Washington.

The naval yacht Sylph was waiting off Newport News and soon after the president's arrival he and Mrs. Wilson left the Mayflower and went aboard. The Sylph started immediately for a trip up the James river and it was expected the president would visit the ruins of Jamestown.

No salutes were fired as the Mayflower passed Fortress Monroe, and the battleships anchored in Hampton Roads, and the president's flag was not flown.

SARAH BERNHARDT PLAYS TO SOLDIERS

Paris, May 13—5:15 a. m.—Sarah Bernhardt returned today from the front, where she gave six performances in three days to the soldiers.

"Nothing could be more moving," said Mme. Bernhardt, "than playing before such heroes. It was the incomparable event of my life. The warmth and heartiness of their applause was most touching. I was delighted with my trip. I even persuaded General B— to take me to a place near Pont-a-Chusson, which is usually bombarded by the Germans. The general refused at first but then consented, saying: 'Since you insist, very well. You are worthy, madame, to be at the post of danger.' I regard that as the highest compliment that has ever been paid to me in my whole life."

BLOCKS TRAINS TO AVENGE DISCHARGE

Chicago, May 13.—Nine passenger trains carrying more than a thousand passengers and fifteen freight trains were held up for three hours at the New York Central railroad interlocking point at the Calumet river, west of the city, last night when a maintainer blocked traffic across the trestle by manipulation of the switching apparatus. The man is to lose his temporary position, and blocked the traffic as a protest against his discharge, he said today. The station is said to be the largest of the kind in the country, having a capacity of 10,000 cars daily.

BUT ONE IS YET TO SIGN.

Lancaster, Pa., May 13.—Only the signature of one descendant is needed for the removal of the body of Gen. John A. Sutter, the discoverer of gold in California, from the Moravian cemetery in Lititz, near here, to Sacramento, Cal., where a monument will be erected to his memory. The cemetery authorities will allow the removal only with the consent of all his descendants. The only one remaining to sign will be procured as [illegible] he can be located.

MAUDE GEORGE

By Maude George

Every girl should know how to cook.

It doesn't cost anything to carry around this useful knowledge and it might prove to be a very handy accomplishment, or even a means of livelihood, for I notice there is usually a good job for a good cook. And you can't always say as much for every profession, nowadays.

I like cooking the pretty dishes that belong in the dessert class. One of my favorites is banana souffle, made thus:

Peel and chop very fine five bananas. Into a pint of whipped cream stir five well-beaten eggs, stirring in quickly the banana pulp.

Turn into a souffle dish, bake in a quick oven until light and brown and serve immediately with sugar and cream. Watch very closely the [illegible]

CLEARY AND HIS CROWD MEET GRANT'S DEFIANCE CREW SUNDAY

The Defiance independents under the generalship of Aggie Grant, old-time Central leaguer, and Mart Cleary's Fort Wayne Crows will get together early Sunday afternoon in the city's second Sunday game of the season. The teams open fire at 2:30, in order to give the Defiance team a chance to get to the 5 o'clock train.

Three new players will grace the Fort Wayne lineup, Chris Chambers, Harry Cashdollar and Tom Railing, local favorites all of them, have joined the team in the past week. A brother of George Mullin or Cashdollar will pitch for Fort Wayne, and both will be in the lineup whether or not they pitch.

THE CROWD CALLED IT MASON'S WIN

But Dick Never Makes a Mistake and It Must Have Been a Draw.

Although the fans howled for a decision for Mason, Referee Dickerson, self-confessed third man in 2,000 fights, called it a draw, and let down Joey Nelson easily and smoothly at Dayton last night. In the main go Hal Stewart and Willie Beecher mixed it for fair, but neither had great advantage in any of the fifteen rounds. Toward the last Stewart was tired, but claimed that Beecher had fouled him. However, Dickerson couldn't see it and called the fighters together. The crowd was sore because Mason's go was called a draw, and hooted Dick for his decision.

ONE-ARMED WONDER PLAYS TWO GARDENS.

Wilmer Bjork lost his left arm at the shoulder years ago, but he is a corking ball player and enthusiastic sea bass angler despite his handicap. He plays with an independent ball team in the Mission district of San Francisco and is at home in either the infield or outfield.

When cavorting about second Bjork wears an infielder's glove and hot liners, pop flies and grounders are alike to him. He spears the ball and throws without discarding the mitt.

Bjork can peg as far and as accurately with the glove on his hand as other players do who use their "meat paw."

STANFORD SENDS ALL-STAR TEAM TO EASTERN TRACK CLASSIC.

Stanford track team: Standing, Left to right, Wilcox vaulter; Lachmund, high jump; Murray, sprints and hurdles; Wilson, mile and two-mile; Moulton, coach; Norton, hurdler; Reynolds, trainer; Lynn, quarter mile; Sisson, broad jump. Seated: Kirksey, sprints; House, hurdles; Schnell, half mile; Aupperle, mile and a half mile; Dievendorff, quarter mile.

(By Harold Johnson.)

When east meets west there comes a tug-o-war!

One of these clashes is forecast in the intercollegiate championship track and field meet to be staged May 27 at Harvard stadium. Stanford university will send its all-star aggregation across the continent to battle for supremacy in the blue ribbon events of the collegiate athletic world. Previous to their appearing at Cambridge the native sons will engage University of Michigan in a dual meet at Ann Arbor.

The veteran "Dad" Moulton, for thirty years coach, has groomed the Stanford machine for a clean-up and will rely on his sprinters and hurdlers to humble the pick of the eastern athletes. Along the Atlantic seaboard preparations are being made to repel the invaders.

Stanford will lose three of its heaviest point winners at the coming graduation. Capt. Fred S. Murray, sprinter and hurdler, who scored fifteen points in the intercollegiate recently and equaled the world's record over hurdles, will be the greatest loss. Johnny Norton, Murray's teammate in the hurdles, and P. R. Wilson, distance runner, are the others.

Murray's place will be filled next year by Meredith E. House, freshman, who set a new Stanford record of 24 seconds for the low hurdles.

ONE SHORTAGE HAS BEEN OVERLOOKED

Source of Meerschaum is Hedged About by War Activities.

Washington, D. C., May 13.—If the shade of the smoker's pipe were of as much moment as the hue of milady's spring costume the possible shortage in the meerschaum market might have attracted as much attention in America, since the beginning of the war, as has the interruption of our aniline dye trade with Germany, for the main source of the world's supply of this earthly mineral lies in the zone of hostilities. The National Geographic society, with headquarters in Washington, in its war geography bulletin issued today, gives the following little known facts about the meerschaum mines of Eski-sehr, the moslem city of 20,000 people which lies 200 miles to the south of Constantinople, on the banks of the Pursak, Su, in Asia Minor:

"Meerschaum, which derives its name from the fact that particles of it were discovered floating on the Black Sea, giving rise to the belief that it was petrified sea-foam, has been dug from the alluvial deposits in the plains near Eski-sehr for a thousand years. Some of the meerschaum beds, located about 18 miles from the city, have as many as 2,000 openings. Here 4,000 Kurds and Persians, in groups of from three to fifteen, burrow through yard-wide holes to depths of from 20 to 200 feet, working night and day under the flickering light of oil lamps. The lumps of mineral clay which they seek is commercially valuable in nodules as small as a hazel nut, while occasionally pieces as large as apples are found.

"When the meerschaum is first brought to the surface it has a grayish or yellowish tinge and is so soft that it can be scraped with a knife. In the summer it is left to dry in the sun, but in the winter it is placed in ovens where it is subjected to a steady temperature day and night for nine days, when it becomes snow white and loses two-thirds of its weight. After being rubbed with flannel and polished with wax it is wrapped in cotton and sent to Austria or America to be resoaked in water until it is so soft that it can be cut like cheese, after which it is sawn into convenient pipe shape, elaborately carved if desired, and fitted with amber stems from Germany. Before the war the value of Eski-sehr's meerschaum exports was more than $1,300,000 annually.

"Even the most aesthetically inclined of our American millionaires would hardly consider the luxury of living in a palace built of meerschaum as within the range of their fortunes, yet there are many unpretentious houses of this material in the Spanish town of Vallecas, near Madrid, where a course variety of this substance it to be found. On the other hand, the Moroccans, just across the straits of Gibraltar, find that still another variety of meerschaum lathers freely and they use it, perhaps sparingly, as a substitute for soap.

"The chips and saw dust of the meerschaum pipe factories make an excellent cleansing powder for removing stains from costly fabrics. An inferior pipe is also made from these scraps, the fragments being bound together with some solution and then molded into blocks.

"Meerschaum is found in Greece and in Hrubschitz, Moravia, as well as in Asia Minor, and to a limited extent in Pennsylvania, South Carolina and in the upper Gila valley, near Silver City, New Mexico."

WESTERN ANGLERS RUN FOR TROUT STREAMS.

F. Spence, president of California Anglers' Association, and a scene on the Klamath river, one of the favorite streams of California fishermen.

San Francisco, May 13.—The lure of the trout streams has gripped 100,000 Californians. And many more are fast yielding.

When the season opened the first of the month a big army of men had their licenses ready for the break of dawn on the first day of legal fly casting.

Licenses fall due on the first of the year and since that time the fish and game commission has been busy issuing new cards to enthusiastic anglers. Scores of lakes and streams throughout the state are now being sought by the tired business men.

Thousands of dollars annually are derived from fishing licenses, the money being used to carry on the state plan of fish and game preservation.

HUSKIES TO FEEL HORRORS OF WAR

Bloomington, Ind., May 13.—Coffee and ice cream will be allowed only once a week to the members of the Indiana university's football squad next fall, according to an announcement made by Coach Ewald O. (Jumbo) Stiehm in an address to the spring football squad. He gave a sample menu that would be adopted next fall. It included: Breakfast—Fruit, cereal, bread, butter and milk. Lunch—Chops, baked potatoes, lettuce, bread and butter, milk or tea. Dinner—Roast, vegetables, lettuce or watercress, bread and butter, bread pudding and milk. To break the monotony, Coach Stiehm said he would permit the players to have ice cream on Saturday night and coffee for Sunday morning breakfast.

Coach Stiehm urged the keeping of the training rules by the players and made a plea to the student body to assist the members of the squad in observing the regulations. He asserted that a defeat with fair play was preferrable to a victory with foul play. The coach praised the spirit of the spring football men at Indiana.

A notable gift to the University of California is the library of about 6,000 volumes representing France's contribution to civilization, which formed part of the French government exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

THIRTY CARS IN SPEEDWAY LISTS

Indianapolis, May 13.—Thirty cars have been entered in the sixth annual automobile race to be held at the Indianapolis motor speedway, but it is possible that some of these may be eliminated before Starter George Dickson calls the drivers to the post at noon May 30 for the beginning of the 300 mile grind.

French manufacturers will be represented by eight cars, while two drivers will have British mounts. The others will be American made cars.

The drivers thus far nominated are: Rickenbacker, Henderson, Louis and Gaston Chevrolet, Resta, Aitken, Mulford, Christiaens, Du Chesneau, Anderson, Rooney Gillman, O'Donnell, Alley, D'Alene, Chandler, Lewis, Johnson, Oldfield, Le Cain, Limberg and Bergdoll. Drivers for some of the cars have not been announced.

DIXIE COLLEGES KEEN FOR ASA.

Asa Lewis, of De Ridder, La., is much in demand on track teams of sundry colleges in Dixie since he scored, single-handed, 28 points in a meet at Baton Rouge. His point total was only one less than that of the combined opposing team.

Lewis only failed to win one of the six events in which he started—the 50-yard dash. He copped the 120-yard hurdles, 220-yard hurdles, hop, skip and jump and 12-pound shotput. He cleared 42 feet in the hop, skip and jump. Asa's brother Bill was all-round star last year for Louisiana State university.

Brave Chief Conejo Fears Movie Camera

Diego Conejo, 112-year-old movie actor.

Perhaps it hasn't been definitely decided just who is the youngest player in the movies, but few will deny Diego Conejo, withered patriarch, the honor of being absolutely the oldest "actor" in the world.

Diego says he is 112 years old. He looks it. No one has come forward with proof to the contrary. He is also the brave chieftain of the Mesa Grande Indians in the Cline production of "Ramona."

At first the old chief refused to stand before the camera, fearing that it was some new style of "white man's devil gun." And even now he is on his guard when the whirring machine is pointed his way.

WORLD FAMOUS COACH DERIDES AMERICANS' STYLE OF SWIMMING.

(By M. C. Larkin, Staff Correspondent.)

Los Angeles, May 13.—Declaring that most American swimming races are mere splashing matches, that the American crawl swimming stroke is a joke, and that if Duke Kahanamoku would get a hair cut he could reduce his swimming record three-fifths of a second, Thomas Wilkinson, one of the world's most famous acquatic coaches, attacked the American system of swimming here recently, giving it a severe lambasting.

For seventeen years, at least one of Wilkinson's proteges has been a world's champion. George Hodgson, Canadian, and present world's title holder for the mile, also holder of world's records for the 400 meters, 1,000 meters and 1,500 meters, was trained by Prof. Wilinkson in Montreal, Canada.

"The best swimmer," says Wilkinson, "is not the man who gets to the other end of the tank quickest, but the fellow who does it with the greatest grace and ease, the lad who is able to keep up his stroke the longest. There are swimming strokes which, when properly learned, will carry one 18 feet.

Prof. Wilkinson has been a swimming coach for forty-one years. Twenty-five years ago he made an endurance swim of 32 miles in a tank and was in the water sixteen hours—from 6 in the morning until 10 at night. He frequently goes into the water now and eats a four-course meal while swimming, as an exhibition stunt.

"There's a difference between swimming and splashing," he declares. "Clawing the water like a mad cat is not swimming. I laugh at the American, for is he not funny? If he swims a quarter of a mile someone has to pick him up in a boat. He is all in with his American crawl stroke."

Any time the arms or legs are lifted out of the water, according to Wilkinson, they become a dead weight. That, he says, is the fault of the American crawl.

"A person should be able to swim a mile as easily as he walks it," asserts Wilkinson. "In fact, he should do it with greater ease, for his entire weight is evenly distributed flat in the water instead of bearing down wholly on his feet. He is working only half of the time if he is relaxing properly between strokes.

"Swimming should be made compulsory in the public schools. It is appalling to think that only 10 per cent of the population of the United States can swim and half of that would drown swimming a quarter of a mile.

"In England, where 90 per cent of the population swims, such events as the tipping over of an excursion boat like the Eastland are regarded as jokes, for everybody swims ashore. Two thousand people were recently spilled into the Thames river below London when an excursion steamer capsized and not a single life was lost! In America such an occurrence would have been a disaster.

"In learning to swim avoid the American crawl. What good is it in case of shipwreck? The swimmer who crawls a hundred yards is exhausted. Learn to swim without ruffling the water. Learn the graceful side stroke and the scientific back stroke—then you can swim a whole day and not be exhausted."

Thomas Wilkinson, Famous Swimming Coach.

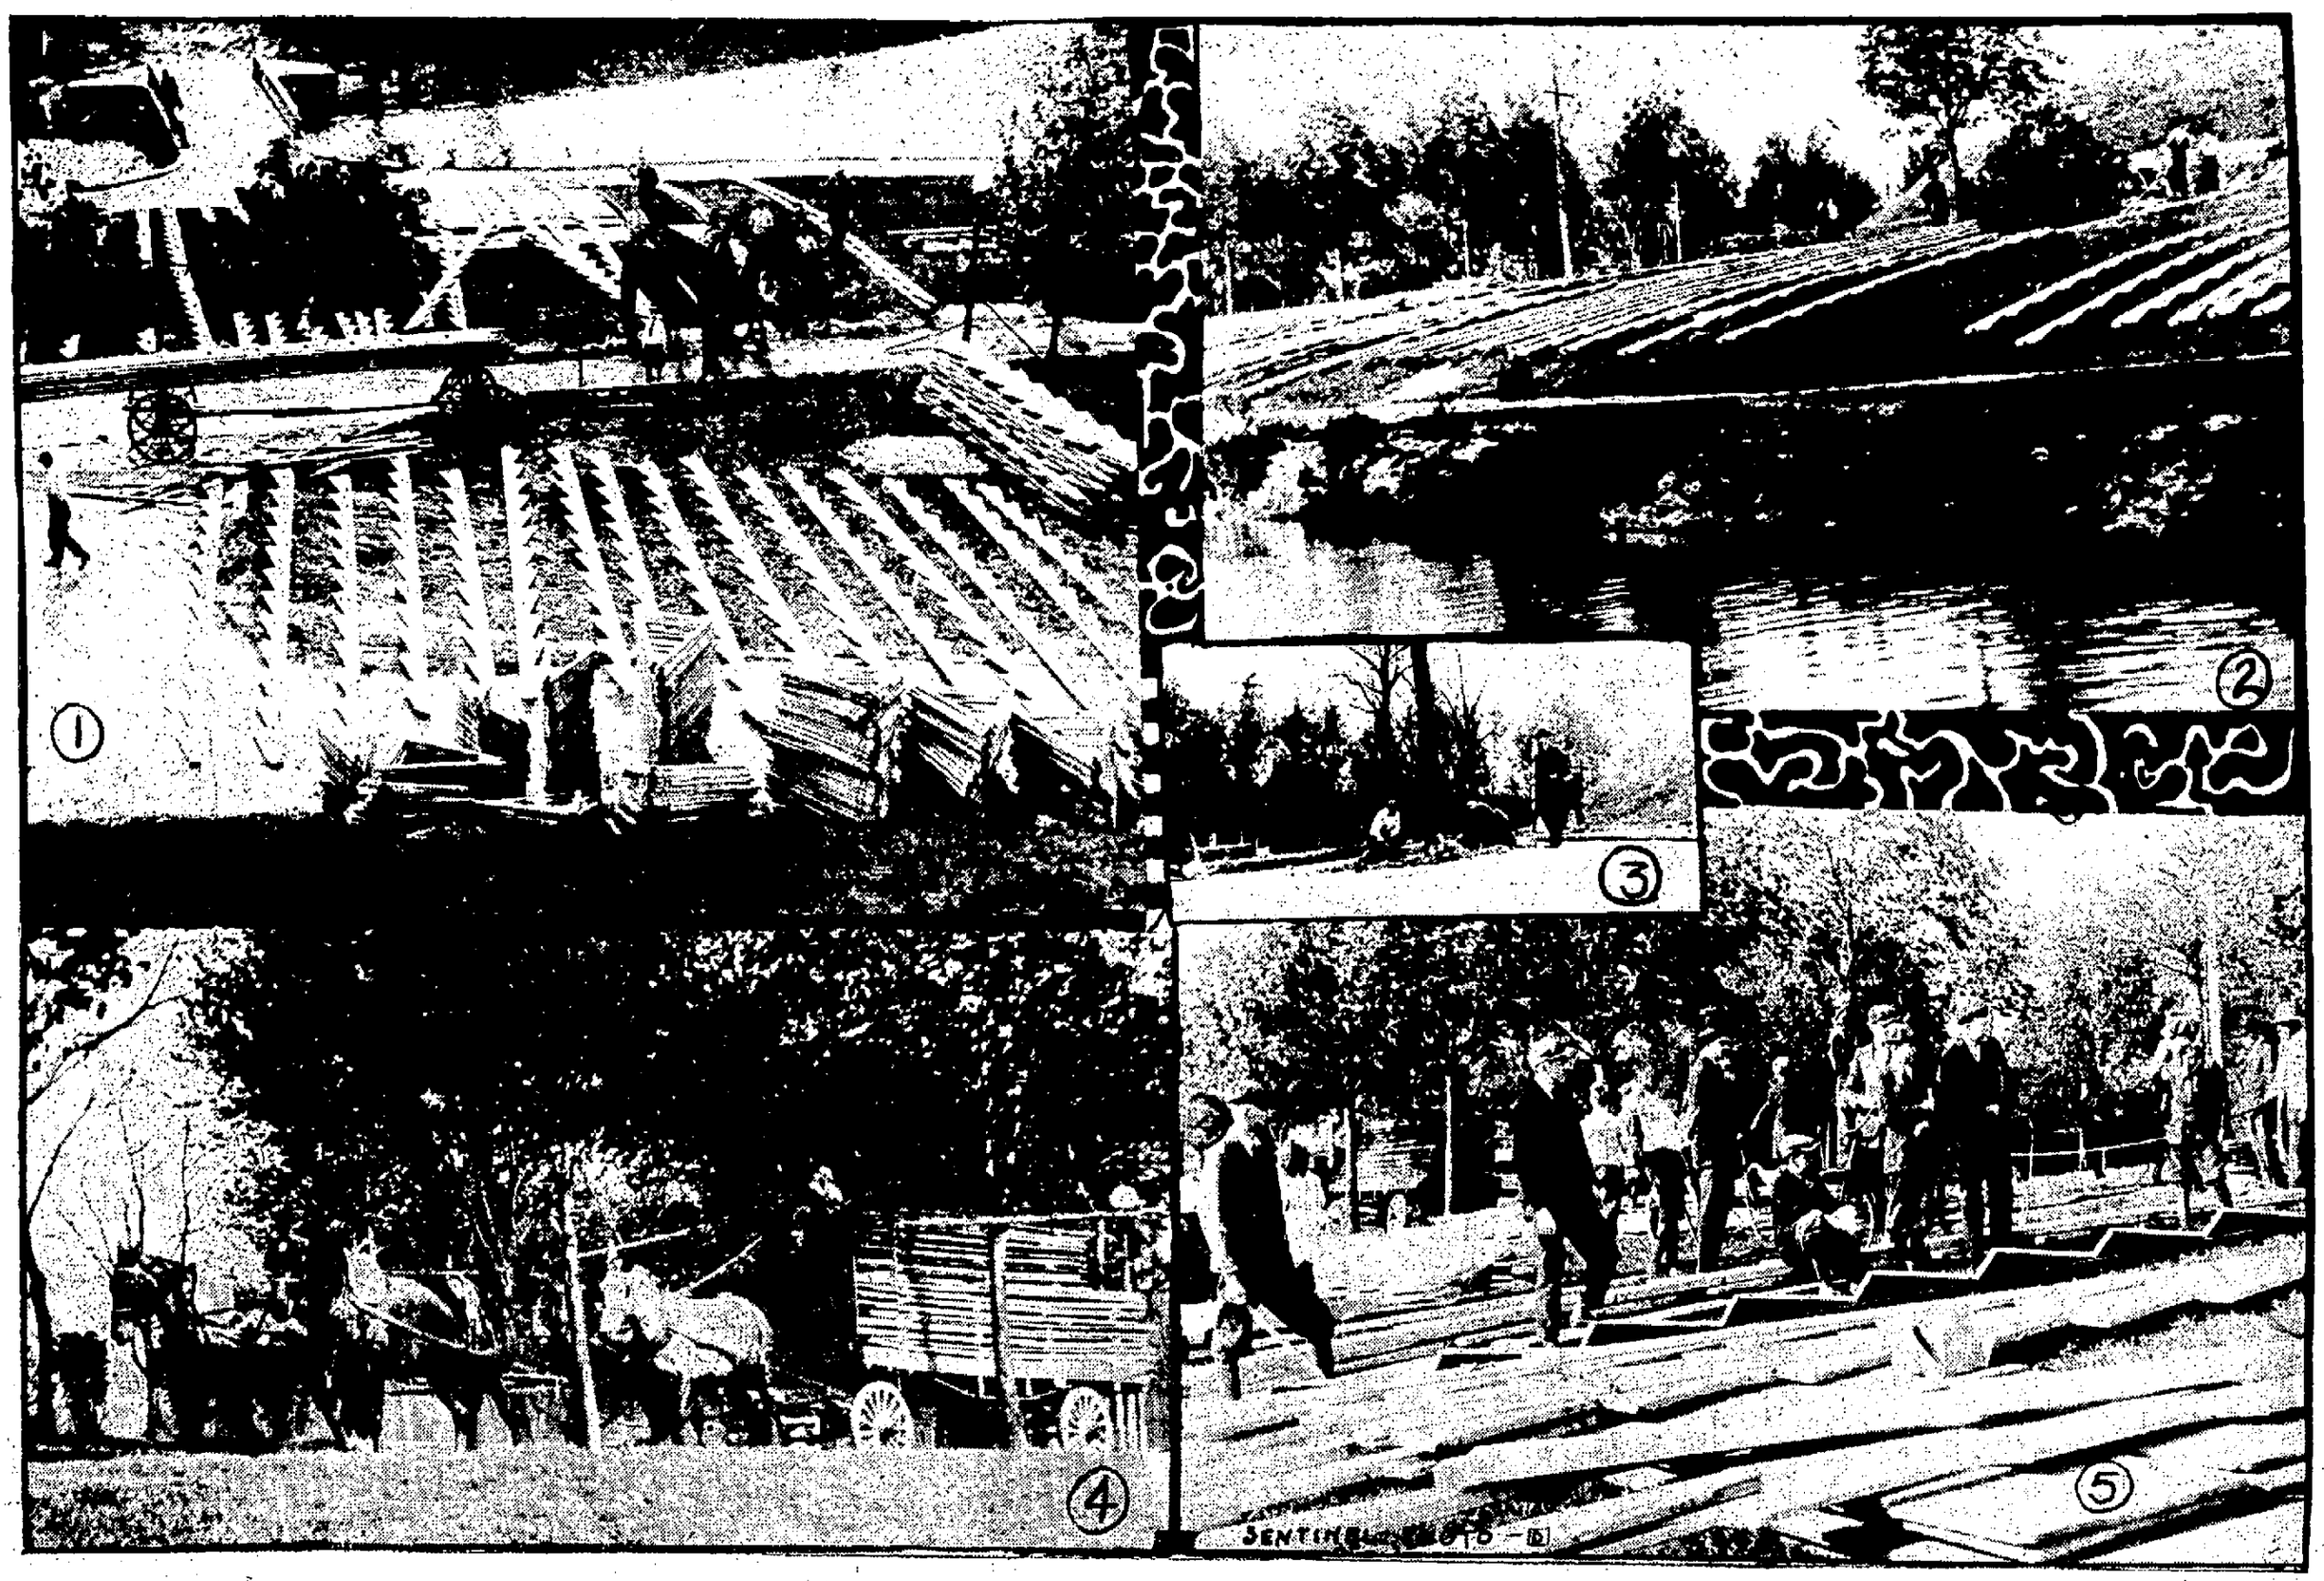
PAGEANT GROUNDS IN RESERVOIR PARK SCENE OF TREMENDOUS ACTIVITY



Although it still is a number of weeks till the great Fort Wayne centennial pageant is to be played, Reservoir park, where it is to be staged, already is the scene of great activity. Resembling a circus ground in its array of blue stringers, well-mauled stakes and chewed jacks, there is circus romance and carnival mystery over the whole park.

Each day finds hundreds of interested onlookers, who get into the way of the workmen, stand in awe as they count the immense piles of seats and bleachers, and comment upon the 15,000 seating capacity with the reverence due so great an undertaking.

Real Circus Seats.

But the circus resemblance requires no summer-tourist agent imagination. For the seats last year were part of the equipment of Ringling Bros. circus and several smaller shows. The seats were bought from the circus, and, after being rebuilt and placed in good condition, were prepared for shipment from place to place for occasions such as the present one. However, the circus men in charge of the job are perfectly willing to concede to Fort Wayne the highest honors on the rolls of ambition, for they never before had quite so big a job to tackle.

The seats began to arrive early in the week, and when they all get here there will be five big carloads of them. Four carloads already are on the ground.

In order to place the seats, vast changes will be made in the park. The little castle on the Rhine tool house that has graced the west side of the reservoir bank since it was erected several years ago at a cost of $600, is being demolished, and will be moved and rebuilt in another part of the park. The two rows of trees that skirt the roadway along the west bank are being cut down, and the smaller trees are being transplanted.

The seats will start at the edge of the lagoon, and will stretch back and up the side of the bank to a point close to the top. The reservoir is a high proposition when one looks at it with a view to placing seats against its side, and it surely will have a great seating capacity.

At the bottom of the bank of the reservoir proper the seats will be probably six or seven feet off the ground, and will slant rapidly toward the ground level both ways, and practically the entire audience will sit within a few feet of the sod. In seating big gatherings safety has to be considered, and there is no danger as long as the seats are close to the ground. This is one of the reasons the reservoir site is one of the finest in the middle west to produce a pageant.

KEY TO PICTURES.

No. 1. Grounds seen from top of reservoir.

No. 2. Stringers spread on ground s seen from the island.

No. 3. Park Superintendent Carl Getz and some of his men taking down a tree.

No. 4. The four horse teams and great loads remind one of a circus.

No. 5. There always is an interested crowd of youngsters and grown folks too, watching the job.

But not only are the stringers, bleachers and jacks real offspring of the circus, but the big gang of men putting them up are circus men as well. One of them has been eight years with the Ringling shows, and others are old showmen. They are tatoo bespattered from top to bottom and from stem to stern.

The crowd that each day watches them at work is seeing the same operations that small boys get up at 3 o'clock on circus day mornings to watch. Of course, there are neither elephants nor the smell of peanuts, but the four horse teams, and the circus tongue, that expressive jargon of cuss and slang, the blue painted seats, and stakes and sledge hammers, the ropes and guys, all are there. And you can see them without getting up just after you go to bed, too.

The Stage.

Work on the stage will commence in earnest next week, and Monday will see a big gang at work on it. This will be the largest stage ever constructed in Indiana for the production of a dramatic offering, and probably the largest in the middle west. Although it is to be but 100 feet between the tall towers that flank the stage proper, boards will run away forward to the edge of the water and some of the action will take place in front of the footlights.

Indian runners will appear from the ends of the islands and run up to the stage proper over the forestage, and the advancing armies will appear and disappear over its edges.

Not only the stage but the bridge will start Monday, and workmen already are taking soundings for it. This bridge is to extend from the island to the junction of Clinton and Taber street. It will be used only by the members of the vast choruses, and will connect the island stage with the dressing tents on the mainland.

These tents will be set in Clinton street, and there will be two of them, both large, one for men and the other for women.

Just drop around and watch the men at work (not in their way of course, but from a distance) and watch the greatest operation Fort Wayne ever saw for an amusement enterprise or an educational celebration.

SILVER TIP SEES DAWN OF NEW DAY IN ALASKA—REX BEACH CHARACTER LEAVES NORTH WHEN ROMANCE FADES.

By Jack Jungmeyer.

Seattle, Wash., May 13.—The North has given back to the States one of its most romantic characters.

"Silver Tip" Otterson, said by Rex Beach to be Dextry in his stirring epic, "The Barrier," has just returned from his last mush in the white silence.

"Alaska and the Yukon," he said, "has become a land of mechanics. Most of the mining, even, is being done by hydraulic and stamp, and romance is spread pretty thin. I have come out to stay."

This from the man who used to chant, "Never a law of God or man runs north of '53!" Who used to glory in danger and hard encounters.

Sourdough of many adventures, George W. Otterson takes a wry pleasure in telling of an episode when he staked his money and his life in a gamble against the wrath of a horde of miners.

"I was piloting a lot of gold-crazed stampeders up the Stikine river in a giddy old steamboat which I had chartered for $1,500 and a big Newfoundland dog, all I possessed in the world," he said.

"The fever for quick riches had wiped away all the civilized veneer in the 300 men abroard. Back home they had been clerks, small business men, drifters, and jacks of all trades—mild, inoffensive men.

"Up here they were ready to kill whomever stood between them and gold.

"They had already been dumped from one boat, short of their destination, by an unscrupulous captain, and they were as ugly as wounded grizzlies.

"When I guaranteed to land them within mushing distance of the big strike they let me know that my life would be forfeit if I disappointed them.

"My old boat, quivering like jelly and spitting steam at every joint whenever we crossed a bar, finally went aground with a dismal groan and hung there.

"The men demanded their money back. I didn't have it. The terms had been med to pay the charter price.

"I was a candidate for a necktie party right then. The captain stood by me with two drawn guns, giving me time to think.

"Luckily we had not gone beyond the reach of the ocean tides in the Stikine, and a rise floated us after several hours of tragic suspense.

"Meantime I watched Alaska at work on the souls of men.

"Silver Tip" Otterson in Alaska costume. At right: Dressed for "The States."

"I saw little men, meek men, henpecked husbands back home, dreamers and white-livered fellows converted into demons, swayed by a berserker rage.

"I saw murder flare in the eyes of men who had once been too squeamish to kill a chicken for dinner. I watched them finger their guns, watching the captain.

"And but for the changing tide, in spite of the captain, they would have hanged me.

"Then I saw Alaska soften them again. As they neared the gold they purred and chuckled, fawning on me like lackeys. A few days later I watched them going into the primitive, heads forward, lashing their dogs—wishing me luck.

"I liked those days. Now they are gone. And to me, unaccountably, there is a deep sadness in their passing. It makes the old sourdough feel like an outcast.

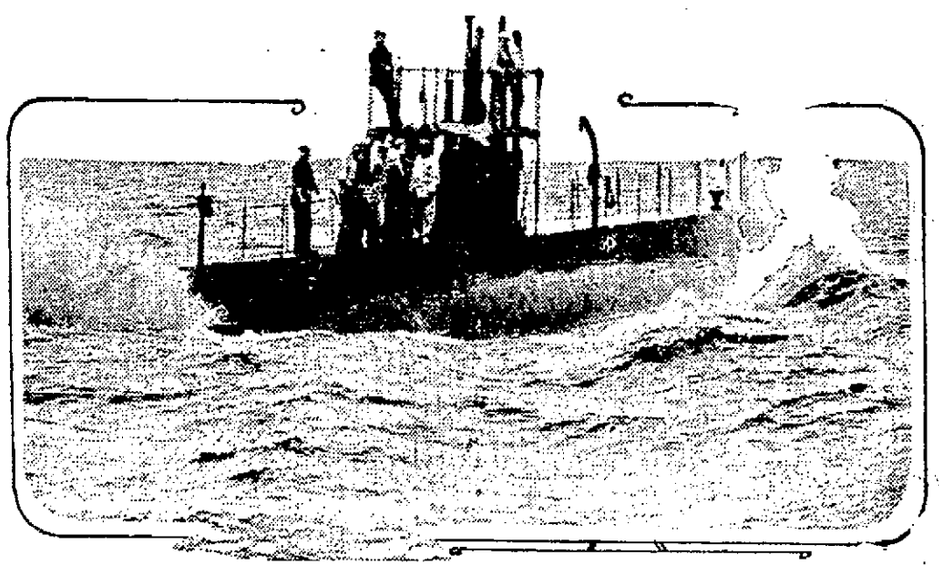
UNCLE SAM ORDERS EXPERTS TO LESSEN PERIL OF SUBMARINES.



Testing U. S. Submarine in the Pacific

By Jack Jungmeyer.

Bremerton, Wash., May 13.—While protesting with his "last word" against methods of U-boat warfare in Europe, Uncle Sam is trying to get his own submarines in shape for any demand.

To make undersea craft safer is the big problem engaging navy officials and experts. Inventors have been concentrating their attention on it, particularly since the disaster to the F-4 at Honolulu last year.

Tests are soon to be conducted at Puget Sound navy yard here of devices designed to make these boats less perilous.

At present, even with the lessons learned and adaptations made through European experiences, the submarine is but a blind, groping, half-helpless fighting monster.

Among the devices to be tested here this month is the new type of Edison storage battery, to develop power while submerged, and the signal and telephone system invented by Draftsman Kirkland and Electrician William Herbert, of Mare Island navy yard.

The Kirkland-Herbert invention consists of a buoy attached to the submarine by a long wire cable, released at will from within the boat, and carrying to the surface telephone connection.

Searchers may thus talk to men imprisoned in ill-fated submersibles. To further facilitate rescue, the marker buoys will have steel lines to which heavy cables may be fastened, drawn through big rings on the hull.

This might eliminate the tragic, tedious groping that featured the hunt for the F-4 with its cargo of dead men.

Electric batteries are a dangerous source of trouble. Chlorine gas, a deadly vapor, formed by salt water coming in contact with the electrolyte of the batteries, is supposed to have snuffed out the lives of the F-4.

In January of this year an improved Edison battery was being tested when a fatal explosion occurred. Experts believe that in eliminating the chlorine gas peril, the new type cell generated twice the former amount of hydrogen, and this mixing with oxygen, filled the cells with a powerful explosive.

There seems room for vast improvement still in this feature of the submarine.

The tests here will bee arefully watched by navy men, and the building program for submarines may to some extent be determined by the results.

GYMNIT CLUB ENTERTAINMENT.

Season of 1915-1916 Closed in Brilliant Manner.

Over 300 people attended the exhibition gymnasium drill and the production of a one-act comedy by the Gymnit club at the club house last night and all agree that it was the finest entertainment of the kind they ever witnessed. The program as published by The Sentinel a few days ago was carried out to the letter and a few extras were given. Since the death of the father one of the daughters has been sick with diphtheria.

J. E. Keegan, superintendent of motive power of the G. R. & I., who spent today in Fort Wayne looking after some business connected with his office, said the G. Benoy, of the Bass boiler shop, had to suspend operations in one department this morning and take the men employed there to help out another department. "We need helpers and laborers badly," Mr. Benoy said.

Sweet Perfume of Violets Was the Drugstore Brand

"Smell 'em, ain't they lovely?"

"O, delightful! Such fragrance! And they're real English violets? O, I believe you; no one who knows could mistake that delicate perfume. How much are they? Not dear at all. I'll have a quarter's worth. And all I'll have to do is just to plant them outdoors in rich soil? It will be splendid to have them right in our own yard."

This is the composite record of a score of conversations that took place a week ago at a stand in the city market between men and women marketers and two simple, unsophisticated country girls who had been given permission by a well-known woman market-gardener to sell violet plants from her stall.

Most of the purchasers of English violets were back again Saturday morning and they were looking for the simple country lasses. They also hunted up City Sealer C. B. Tolan, who keeps the weights and measures true on the city market, and Deputy City Meat and Dairy Inspector Charles Josse, who sees to it that milk is fresh and pure and flesh food untainted.

"Why the very idea of it!" said one woman who had purchased English violets. "They were nothing but common field violets—just johnny-jump-ups And they did smell lovely, too. But after I got home and planted them and invited some of my friends in the neighborhood over to see what treasures I had purchased the perfume had all gone. Those flowers had no more scent than a paper posy. It's a swindle and a cheat. You ought to look out for those girls—the sly things."

Sealer Tolan and Inspector Josse said they would. But they won't. They, too, have been raising English violets. The simple rural lasses had "salted" their field violets with cheap synthetic perfumes purchased for about a dollar a quart at a drug store and made the wild blossoms take on a high reputation for the matter of an hour or two.

Vacant Rooms? Don't Worry

If you have not found a tenant for your room, there's no use despairing and "publishing" the fact all over in scare headlines.

"There are just as good tenants in the city as ever been gotten."

The best way to reach them is to place your "For Rent" ad. in the paper that the tenants read. In Fort Wayne nearly everyone takes The Sentinel and reads Sentinel want ads.

AT KEITH PALACE

"WAR BRIDES" CLOSES TONIGHT.

Intense Emotional One-Act Play at the New Palace.

"War Brides," the intense interest-arresting appeal for universal peace, which closes at the New Palace this evening, is the most discussed bit of dramatic endeavor that the season has afforded. Whether the suffering of the women of a nation should be made paramount to the development of the country through the agency of war, or whether the revolt of the women against sending their sons, husbands and fathers off to war should be checked are the points in dispute in arguments that are holding every fireside's attention these more or less spring days. Whatever the result of the arguments or whatever the differences of opinion as to the lesson of the drama, there is but one verdict on the power of the players presenting it. Sara Biala's enactment of the role of Joan, the recalcitrant mother-to-be, marks her as an emotional actress scarcely second to the Nazimova herself. "War Brides" is not a play to be taken lightly. There's no lilt nor laugh to it. Neither is it neurotically horrible. It is simply a passionate scene from life behind the scenes of war.

The remainder of the current bill is just as rollickingly hilarious as "War Brides' is serious. The Sharrocks, Harry and Emma, are presenting a real act. They appear as a team of fakirs who, unable to get a location at a county fair, pitch their tent behind the grandstand where they proceed to exploit the mind-reading ability of Zaza. Emma is some "telepathist" and the stunt is pulled off with a merry laugh that makes it go over big. Frank Morrell, the large person with the large voice and the clever stories; Gardner's leaping bulldogs and the Troy Comedy Four, a singing comedy set, complete the bill.

The famous Princess Kalama, assisted by William Kao, will feature the new bill the first half of the week. The princess is the original whirlwind exponent of the Hula-Hula dance, the Hawaiian national dance. On this same bill are Neil McKinley, Thomas O. Jackson and company and others.

AT THE EMPRESS

Next week the Empress will offer its patrons another big rousing musical comedy success. The vehicle selected by Arthur Clamage for presentation next week is the late Broadway success "The Girl from Luxemburg" which is said to be one of the strongest bills in Mr. Clamage's extensive repertoire.

All of the Empress favorites including Mr. Clamage, Mabel Faleer, Anna Davis, Katherine Pullman, Sam Mitchell, Edie Smith, James Barrett and others will be seen to good advantage in "The Girl from Luxemburg" while the famous singing and dancing chorus will be seen in some entirely new marches and drills.

The scenery, costumes and music will all be new, and owing to the great success attained by Arthur Clamage and his talented company, "The Girl from Luxemburg" will undoubtedly draw capacity houses.

There will be performances each evening and a matinee every day during the week. Popular prices will prevail at all times.

TAFT WILL APPEAR IN FLORAL PARADE

Gov. Ralston Also to Participate in Centennial Spectacle.

William Howard Taft, former president of the United tSates, will spend the entire day of Tuesday, June 8, in Fort Wayne, enjoying a demonstration of Fort Wayne's pride in its history and its modern achievements along many lines of endeavor.

Mr. Taft's train will reach the city at 10:15 in the morning. The schedule, as mapped out by the committees in charge is as follows:

1:30 p. m.—The former president, with Governor Samuel M. Ralston and the members of the Indiana Historical commission, will appear in the great floral automobile parade.

3:00 p. m.—Mr. Taft will speak at the pageant grounds. Governor Ralston will make a brief address of introduction.

5:00 to 6:00 p. m.—Public reception to the former president, the governor and the members of the historical commission at the Anthony hotel.

8:00 p. m.—The guests will attend the Fort Wayne historical pageant as the guests of the Centennial association.

As soon as Mr. Taft arrives, he will be in the glad hands of representatives of the city selected for the purpose. The women in charge of the decorated automobile parade are pleased to learn that the plans of Mr. Taft and of Governor Ralston are such that the distinguished guests can participate in their beautiful demonstration of the artistic in parades of the most modern kind.

The parade will disband at the pageant grounds where, at 3 o'clock, the governor will introduce the former chief executive.

Following the address of Mr. Taft, a public reception will be held at the Anthony. Although Mr. Taft's train will leave before the pageant program in the evening is finished, he will have time to learn of the magnitude of the production and to become impressed with Fort Wayne's high quality of home pride and the community spirit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The following questions have been asked:

Q—I want an invitation sent to a former citizen of Fort Wayne to attend the celebration. What am I supposed to do?

A—Telephone 3900, centennial headquarters, and say: "I want to give you the name and address of a former citizen to whom an invitation to the celebration should be sent." That's all.

Q—I have bought a one-dollar ticket for the pageant from one of the ladies in our church, but it isn't reserved. What shall I do?

A—Take it to the reservation ticket booth at Wolf & Dessauer's store on or after Monday, May 15. Harry Triskett will be more than glad to fix you up without extra charge.

Q—What will it cost to see the different things during celebration week?

A—A reserved seat for the pageant will cost $1. An admission ticket to the industrial exposition, including all of the shows and the concerts, will cost 25 cents. An admission ticket to the exhibit at the Woman's building will cost 10 cents. For $1.35 you can see everything that the centennial association has prepared for you. Mr. Taft's speech, the parades and everything else that is in charge of the association are free.

Q—As long as I don't know anything about the seating arrangement at the pageant, how can I tell whether or not I am getting a good seat?

A—At the places of seat sale, there will be a blue print of the seating arrangement (the same as the theaters have) which will make it as plain as day.

(Any other questions, telephoned to R. B. Garmire (3900) in charge of the secretary's office of the association, Commercial club, or to Harry W. Muller (3555), secretary in charge of the pageant, will be answered. This department in the Sentinel will be a daily feature.

THESE ARE "COMING HOME"

Names Are Added Daily to the List of Former Citizens Who'll Be Here

When Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tigar, of Decatur, Illinois, wrote to accept the invitation to "come back home," they added that they had been gone from Fort Wayne one-half of a year, which, they declared, is "six months too long." That's the way to talk! Possibly the homecoming committee will give all of these homecomers such a good time that they won't want to go away again. Here's hopeing. The following names are added to the growing list of those who have declared they're coming to the centennial celebration:

Mrs. Ella Williams, 1222 Fairfield avenue, Los Angeles, Cal.; absent five years.

C. M. Conparet, 1646 North Temple avenue, Indianapolis; absent five years, five years, four in party.

TO BUILD SPECIAL FIRE HOUSE

City Prepares to Protect Exposition from Fire Danger.

A special fire house is being erected within the grounds of the Industrial exposition for use during the centennial week. Here will be stationed the city's new chemical engine and hose apparatus, in charge of six firemen, who will be in constant attendance.

The long line of booths, which, if placed end to end, would make a stretch of a mile and a half, will be filled with valuable exhibits, and the centennial association has not felt safe without ample protection against fire. The city responded liberally and exhibited the high spirit in arranging immediately to place its new chemical and hose apparatus with competent men, at the service of the exposition.

NO PEANUTS OR "LEMO"

The Audience at the Pageant Will Not Be Troubled by "Barkers."

Patrons who are now buying their tickets for the great Fort Wayne pageant will be glad to know that during the entire production there will be eliminated from the affair every annoyance which commonly attends events given under similar conditions. There will be no barkers crowding through the audience either during or between the scenes, selling "peanuts, lemonade, crackerjack or gum!" Possibly the ushers may be provided with the book of the pageant, for the use of those who fail to purchase their copy in advance of entering the amphitheater.

"Probably the most surprised people we have to deal with," observed General Chairman Miller last evening, "are the concession men, who are flocking into town with the belief that this is to be a big carnival week. We have given most of them to understand, that they have no place in our arrangements, though others have plans which are allowable on the streets and possibly at the exposition, which is a great commercial enterprise: but the pageant is a different proposition, so different, in fact, that even our own people have not yet awakened to the nature of it. But it's coming. I mean, we are gradually learning what it is all about. To have a lot of boys going through the pageant shouting the sale of refreshments would be as far out of keeping with the spirit of the occasion as one can well imagine. I believe the thinking people of Fort Wayne will appreciate our stand in this matter. We lose from $200 to $300 by turning down this concession, but what are a few hundred dollars, if we are going to do something to destroy the entire atmosphere of the occasion?"

ST. PETER'S LADIES

Committee Is Busy With the Sale of Pageant Tickets

With Mrs. Caroline Wessel as chairman, the following committee of ladies of St. Peter's Catholic church, is busy with the sale of tickets for the pageant: Mrs. John Distel, Miss Ella Franke, Mrs. Mary Lill, Mrs. J. E. Bickel, Mrs. P. A. Offenloch, Mrs. John J. Alt, Mrs. Martin Rinehart, Mrs. Frank Getty, Mrs. Henry Grosh, Mrs Julian E. Franke, Mrs. Mary Harber and Mrs. Albert Zickgraf.

Members of the congregation will find it convenient to secure tickets from these ladies. Reservations can be made on Monday, May 15.

MUNCIE IS INTERESTED

A letter received from Rosza Tonkel, of Muncie, telling about the coming celebration at that place, says: "I am writing for information on the Fort Wayne pageant. I am located in Muncie at this time and want to interest the people of the Muncie normal institute in the celebration. They are very much interested in the centennial here, and have been having a series of talks on the history of Indiana. They are 'ripe' for some of your advertising. Please write all of the particulars and send the program for the week. I know of a great number of Muncie folks who intend going up for the week."

OFFUT WILL BUILD THE PAGEANT STAGE

The contract for the building of the stage for the pageant has been awarded to the Indiana Engineering Co., through Harry Offut. The undertaking is an extensive one, as it involves the erection of two high, ornamental towers and the construction of a floor covering almost the entire island in the artificial lake in Reservoir park, where the production will be given on the nights of June 6, 7 and 8. Work has already commenced on the stage construction.

SOFT SNAPS

Dr. George W. Gillie went to Decatur, Friday evening, to apply the Mallein test for glanders to a carload of horses awaiting shipment to Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Erd, 1720 Short street, have returned from Cleveland, where they attended the funeral of their nephew, Charles Margo. Another nephew, William A. Young, is seriously ill. While in Cleveland they received word of the death of William F. May, a cousin living at Huntington.

ANSWERS TO MOVIE FANS

Sign your name, but give the title to use in column. Personal replies will be given only when stamped, self-addressed envelopes are inclosed. Address all queries to Photoplay Editor, care of this paper.

LA ZELL—All the players you name are appearing regularly in pictures, with the exception of Lottie Pickford and Irving Cummings. Miss Pickford has appeared in only one picture since the serial, and Irving Cummings played in one or two Mutual pictures, then went on the vaudeville stage for the winter. Theda Bara plays in Fox films, Francis Bushman in Metro plays, Charlotte Burton, William Russell and Vivian Rich are seen on the American-Mutual programs and Crane Wilbur in Horsley-Mutual features. The Diamond from the Sky sequel will have the same players as appeared in the original film, as far as possible. Ethel Fleming is the wife of William Courtleigh, Jr.

TEXARKANA, TEX.—Cannot find the whereabouts of Irene Clements. Your question is filed away for future reference, however, and we may run on to the name at some future time.

W. N. H.—J. Gordon Edwards, who was stage director at the Suburban Garden in St. Louis several years ago, is now a director with the Fox Film Company, 130 West Forty-sixth street, New York.

JENNINGS, OK.—See answer to La Zell. Irving Cummings is 28 years old and William Russell is about the same age. Neither are married, and we don't know whether they correspond with anyone or not, but very likely they do.

A PHOTOPLAY FAN—You will find a list of the photoplay stars whose portraits will be given with the Sunday GLOBE-DEMOCRAT in another part of the paper. The list may be added to in the future.

BROWN EYES—If you sent stamps for the return of your photos to the Brains and Beauty contest you will undoubtedly get them back after the winners have been decided upon—some time in May. The only thing you can do now is to wait patiently until the judges "pick the winners."

P. G. O.—Helen Marie Osborne, who plays "Little Mary Sunshine" in the Pathe play of that name, was just 4 years old on April 29 last. Her mother is an actress, whose stage name is "Babe" St. Clair, and her father is L. T. Osborn, an actor. The family works at the Balboa studio in California.

The Lost Sweetheart

J. WARREN KERRIGAN, the Bluebird star, believes in the old adage that listeners never hear any good of themselves. "Jack" went to a movie show the other night to see one of his own pictures, and not wishing to be seen taking a dose of his own medicine, he slipped quietly into the theater and took a seat in a thinly populated part of the house. No sooner was he seated than three girls entered and sat behind him. All at once he heard one of them exclaim:

"Why, Jack Kerrigan is in that picture," and then she went on to declare:

"You know, Jack and I were engaged to be married a few years ago. I told him he would have to choose between marrying me and being a moving picture actor, and he became an actor."

Letters from a Correspondence School Actor

DEAR DAVE:

Well Dave, I am writing this letter at Jake's Place, and I may not get to finish it because he will put out the lights pretty soon. I didn't care for no supper so I didn't go out to the ranch, but come here and et some lunch in Jake's place and got some paper to write you a letter on. You know me, Dave. Paper has gone sky high.

I got that letter you said Lafe and Thorn was going to write me to see if I could get them a job acting in the movies. And I wrote them back a letter and told them times was kind of hard out here in the movies now, and none of the studios was putting on any new hands, but letting them go, but I might get them a job after a while like I did Mabel.

"I will take you all home in my automobile."

They think I am an awful big actor, them boys do, but I guess everybody thinks I am a big actor that sees me acting in the movies. I ain't forgot what Lafe and Thorn used to say about me, and make fun of me when I used to say I was going to be a movie actor or bust, but I don't hold that against them, because I did get to be a movie actor, and they are still working at the soda fountain of a drug store and hanging paper and maybe painting a sign now and then.

I bet they would be awful boobs if they was to come out here, and get all kinds of tricks played on them, like boobs that come to the studio does sometimes. There was a fellow that looked like a boob come to the studio today, but he wasn't such a boog after all, but he sure looked like a big one. He must have weighed 250 or maybe 255 pounds.

He comes in the studio and Bennie Steinbush was smoking a cigar with his feet on the table like he owned the place, and he took off his hat, awful polite, and asked Bennie if there was any chance to get any acting to do, and Bennie said:

"Don't you know the vice president don't do the hiring of no actors?" and the boob said:

"No, I didn't know that, but it is awful kind of the office boy to tell me."

Everybody laughed at Bennie, and the fat fellow never cracked a smile, and Bennie pretended he wasn't mad, but he winked at me and told the boob to go in the office and talk to J. J. Murphy.

J. J. was in there working on a scenario, and it's like trying to talk to a bear with a sore head to try to talk to him when he is doing that. Bennie says:

"You tell him you heard they wanted someone to play heavies, that ought to suit you. How much do you weigh?"

The boob said: "Oh, I weigh enough, I guess."

Then Bennie said:

"Don't believe him if he says no, he will be just kiddin' and trying to get you to work for low wages. Tell him you weigh as much as Fatty Arbuckle and he'll give you a job sure."

The boob knocked on the door of the office, and when J. J. opened the door he asked him for a job of acting. J. J. says:

"Nothing doing, we've got too many actors now," and the boob said, "Well, I heard you wanted someone to play heavy parts and I am awfully heavy. I weigh more than Fatty Arbuckle."

J. J. says: "We don't need any fat actors and we've got too many fat-headed actors," and he looked right straight at Bennie and closed the door. Bennie said:

"He don't mean that. You stick around."

And the boob went over and started to talking to Mabel and Lucy and telling them jokes, although he had never seen them before in his life.

Me and Bennie made it up to have a lot of fun out of him. I went out and come back pretty soon and said:

"Mr. Steinbush, our film stretcher is broke and we can't make them pictures unless we get another one," and Bennie says to the boob:

"Will you do me a favor? Go over to the All-Star Studio and ask them to loan us their film stretcher, ours is broke."

There ain't no such a thing as a film stretcher, Dave, it is just like sending somebody to get a left-handed monkey wrench or a nickel's worth of white lamp black, or some fool thing like they used to do at Fleming's livery stable. We sat around and had a good laugh, and in about an hour he come back and said they didn't have no film stretcher and that their films didn't need no stretching.

Bennie wanted him to go to another place, and he said he was tired from walking so much and Bennie said: "Well, you knock on that door again and tell the director to give you some money to ride on the jitney bus and go to the Alhambra studio to get one."

He knocked on the door again, and J. J. says:

"This monkey business has got to stop," and he was awful mad and told the boob we was making a fool of him, and the boob said, "and they are such innocent-looking boys, too," and he started to laugh and handed J. J. his card, and J. J.'s eyes stuck out so you could have snared them off with a grapevine, and he grabbed the boob by the hand and drug him in the office and closed the door, and we didn't know what to think, and Bennie says:

"I am going to take a walk," an he went away, and I took a walk, too.

Pretty soon I thought the boob would be through talking to Murphy and I went back, and I met that boob talking to Mabel and Lucy and they was laughing fit to kill at everything he said.

I ain't afraid of no fat man, because he couldn't get around very fast, so I went up and was friendly with him. He was telling Lucy and Mabel that J. J. asked him to come back tomorrow and see them make some of the new serial with the double exposure. He said J. J. told him they would make some of the scenes then, but they didn't have no masks for the camera work, and I thought of a store that kept a lot of them down close to Lucy's ranch, and I said I knew where there was a lot of them, and he said:

"Oh, this is the young man that lost his film stretcher, ain't it?"

I said I hoped he wasn't mad and he said no, he wasn't mad, but J. J. was pretty mad, and he said:

"You can fix things up with him, though, if you'll go and get him some of them masks," and I said, "I'll go right now," and he said: "Yes, hurry."

It was about a mile down to that store, but I thought I would walk, and when I was going along I heard an automobile coming awful fast and I had to jump to keep from being hit, and when it passed me there was Lucy and Mabel in it with that boob, and they waved at me.

Them masks was two bits apiece, and I got four, one of them had a long nose, and one was a Chinaman's face, one was a coon and the other was just a plain false face with some whiskers, and when I got back to the studio they was all there, and I said to J. J., "Here are some masks," and he looked at them and laughed till he cried:

"Open the window," he said, "and give me some air or I will die."

They didn't mean a false face mask like you wear at a masquerade ball, Dave, but a thing they put over the end of the camera when they are making double exposure pictures that they call a mask, and I went and made a fool out of myself.

And Lucy was standing right there and didn't tell me no difference, and Mabel, too, only Mabel didn't know any better herself, she has only been in the movies a week or two and is awful green. When it was time for us all to go home, the noob said to Lucy and Mabel:

"I will take you all home in my automobile," and they said all right, and Lucy says:

"Come on, Tom," but I wouldn't go with no fat boob that plays tricks on people like that. I was friendly with him and would have showed him a lot about the studio if he hadn't acted that way."

Them girls went off in the automobile and I wasn't hungry, so I didn't go home to get no supper, but I come here to Jake's place, and he has got a back room where folks plays cards and where you can write letters.

I'll have to close this letter now so he can close his place up. Them girls didn't treat me right, Dave, and I may quit and go to work for some other movie company in the morning and never go back to Lucy's ranch any more except when she ain't there, to see how her little sister that got her back hurt from falling off a trapeze is getting along. I'll finish this letter tomorrow, or some other time, when I feel better, and all my friends don't go back on me and go riding around with a fat boob in an automobile.

Well, Dave, I'm going to finish this letter now, and you can't guess what happened. That fat boob wasn't no boob at all, but an actor, not a movie actor, but an actor from the regular stage. He used to act in a company that traveled all over Europe, and made a hit in a play called Falstaff, where there is a man named Windsor that has got a lot of wives, and this Falstaff gets in trouble over some of them.

His father and J. J. Murphy's father used to be chums together in London in England. He is a great joker and he just pretended to be a boob and tried to fool us at the studio, and he did fool everybody, and J. J. too.

I asked J. J. if he was going to give him a job in our company, and J. J. says:

"I couldn't pay him what he's worth. He could give us all jobs and then have a lot of money left after paying us good salaries," but J. J. wants him to put some money in our company so we can have a big studio and hire some big actors. Of course, they have got me, but they may need some more, so if I get sick or get hurt doing some kind of dangerous stunt they wouldn't have to close down till I got well, and J. J. says he will act with us for a while to see how he likes it and for the fun of it.

I told J. J. I was sorry me and Bennie sent him after that film stretcher, if he was a friend of his, and he said:

"You should worry, he didn't go. That fellow invented practical jokes."

But if he didn't go I don't see why he had to go and play that joke on me about them false faces, do you, Dave? Of course, it wouldn't have been so bad if I had played a joke on him, but as he knowed better and didn't go, but took a spin in his automobile and acted like he went, he didn't have no call to play a joke like that on me, did he?

We are going to make that double exposure next week, and it will be hard work. I have got to play a part where I shake hands with myself, and talk to myself and things like that. I will tell you how it was done the next time I write.

Mr. Mercer Lansing is the fat actor's name. He's coming out to the ranch to eat supper with me and the girls, and I bet it'll take a lot to feed him.

I told Lucy I didn't see how no girl could get stuck on a fat man like he was, and she said: "Don't you worry about it, Tom, Mabel won't have a chance. I am going to catch him myself."

I don't think I will show up when that boob comes to the ranch for supper, because I will be pretty tired, I guess, from acting hard all day. I will just go over to Jake's place and get some lunch and then take in a movie show somewhere. Well, good-by, Dave. TOM.

SUMMER BOARDERS EDDYTORIUL

Two parties named Mr. & Mrs. H. M. Sterling from the city (whitch city we aint lernt) is at present boarding and rooming at the residence of Eph Higgins our accommodating postmaster. Here is how it happened:

About a wk or so ago a letter come to Bingville adrest to the P. M. asking if he knowd of enny person or persons who would take summer boarders inclooding the writer & wife in Bingville or vicinitty. Eph he set down & writ right back that he and his wife would do so and a few days ago Mr. & Mrs. Sterling arrived bag and baggage and are now stopping at Ephs who they pay $8. per wk each (making a grand total of $16 for both) for board and room. As a result Ephs gittin rich hand over fist and hopes Mr. & Mrs. Sterling will remain all summer and all next winter too for that matter.

Eph says theyre awful nice folks but turrible partickler about some things for instants:—Eph says they wont warsh their faces out at the pump in the front yard in the mornings like he does hisself and dont like home made lye sope either. As a result of this Eph had to make a speshial trip to the co seat and lay in a warshbowl & picher also some nice smelly sope for his gests. He also says that they like their eggs soft biled for brekfast whereas the harder his eggs is biled the better he likes em.

In spite of this however Eph says theyre turrible profittable being as at $8. per each per wk he calkilates he makes a profit of about $14 or $15 on both. The concyquence is that all Ephs nabers is jealous of him gittin rich beyond the fondest dreams of avarice in this manner and some of em are even advertisin in the Bugle in the hope of gettin a few summer boarders theirselfs. (See advertising collum in this ishue.)

It looks to us as edditor & prop of the Bugle like as if summer boarders is a good thing. Why dont more go into this bizness we ask? As long as citty folks is willing to pay $8. per wk each for board & room thats more profittable than farming or ennythink else we can think of. Eph says he calkilates that Mr. Sterling would jest as quick paid him $15. per each apiece instid of $8 and now he'll allus regret he diddent ask him that.

Eph says citty boarders aint very smart and are easy to fool. They think theyre gittin cream in their coffee and fresh butter right from Ephs cow and eggs hot offen the nest whereas Eph aint got no cow nor hens neither but buys his butter & eggs from Hen Weathersbys store and haff the time they aint fresh. As for cream thats skimd milk whitch Eph gits from Ananias Doolittle next door for nothink after it has went through the seppe-rater.

If you desire to git rich this summer boardin summer boarders why dont you advertise for same in the Bugle like Amzi Miller is a doing this wk?

TURNER'S WATERING TROUGH

You aint heard from us for quite a spell have you? Well the reason is two reasons—in the 1st place we've been too bizzy with our manifold dooties to write and in the 2d place there wassent enny news to write in the first place. We hope this explanashion will be satisfacktory.

Silas Goodwin is suffering from a turrible cold in his head. He says he thinks to goodness he'll sneeze his head clean offen his shoulders at times and feels so misable he dont care if he does. Si dont know where he ketchd his cold and says he dont care neither being as it wouldn't cure his cold now if he did know.

Ben Hoover went to kick at his dog tother day, but missed the dog and kicked his wife on the shin who was passing at the time with the dishpan full of water to throw out. Melissy (that's Ben's wife's name) responded promptly by throwing the panful of greasy dishwater into Ben's fase. The dog excaped unhurt. Ben says Melissy is purty tempery and he's got to watch his p's & q's.

Rufus Hemmingway purchased a horse to take the place of the one which dide on him recent. In our opinion it wouldn't take mutch of a horse to do that being as the one that dide was on its last legs ennyhow.

Mrs. Lank Simmons persented her husband with a fine pr. of twins last wk. One was a girl but we diddent lern what tother one was. Lank says as far as he is concerned one twin would of been a plenty being as he already is the father of seven there is other things in this world whitch he can think of that he needs worsen twins.

Ranse Smithers whilst stoopin over to tie his shoe had his specktacles to drop offen his nose and break tother day. Ranse says he feels lost being as they was his near-to specktacles and he can't read a word without 'em and won't know what's in the newspapers until he gets a new pr.

SYCAMORE BEND

There aint mutch happening around the Bend this wk. Some wks. there is and some there aint, but we persoom that's the way of it everywhere.

Miss Lillie Freedland made a shopping trip over to Hardscrabble last wk. and purchased enuff trimming to trim over her last yr.'s hat. Miss Lillie most allus manages to make a hat go two or three yrs.

Jed Wilkins had a bad cold in his chest and put on a mustard plaster to cure it. The mustard plaster cured the cold but blisterd Jed's chest and now he says he don't know whitch is worse the cold or the blister.

We notised that Miss Gerty Jones had a light in the parler up to as late as 9 p. m. last Satterday evg. You ort not to git betwixt the lamp and the winder shade, Gerty—we seen you kiss Sam good night.

Most all of the spring planting has been did hereabouts and it's prackticalily too late now to did what aint been did.

It is our opinion whitch is shared by the communitty in general that a shower or two of rain wouldn't do enny harm. In other words it would do good.

In conclooshion we desire to state that your correspondent failed to receive his copy of last week's Bugle and we might add, why was this? If you expeckt us to keep you supplied with news from this vicinitty you'll haft to see that we get our paper evry week. That was the bargain, you know.

Births

You have probly notised that Bingville aint added enny to her populashion for quite a spell back. In other words the populashion of this town has been prackticalily at a standstill as we might say and something ort to be did about it.

We ain't said mutch about this matter of late becuz we've been ashamed to mentshion it. Take the town of Hardscrabble for instints. Last wk.'s Hardscrabble Banner reported four births in the period of seven days whereas we have investigated hereabouts and all we can find in the way of a birth in Bingville during the past wk. was a caff borned to Cy Winslow's old spotted cow.

Are we agoing to stand idly by and let our rival town of Hardscrabble git ahead of us on populashion in this manner or are we not, we ask. What is it makes populashion? Why it's babies that makes it—enny blamed fool ort to know that. Well, aint we got enny pride in trying to make Bingville one of the metropolisses of this nashion? We'll nevver be a metropolis unless we have more births in the fuchure than we have in the past that's one shure thing.

In a conferents whitch we had with Doc Livermore our huming speshialist & horse veternary Doc told us very confidenchial that he knowd of several prospecktive births in our midst but of course it wouldnt be good form to say ennythink more about this at the present writing. All we can do is to wait and hope.

In conclooshion we desire to say that we hope we shant haft to speak about this matter agin.

No Personals This Wk.

You will observe if you are a very clost observer that there aint enny "Personals" in this ishue of the Bugle. The reason there aint no personals apears is owing largely to the skeercitty of the same.

Some wks. you will notis that we have quite a assortment of "Personals" and then along'll come a wk. when there aint haff so menny or for instants a wk. like this when there aint none a tall.

We have been so drove up with our multifarious dooties as edditor, prop., advg. mgr. & everythink else conneckted with the Bugle that we aint had a opportoonitty to collectk our ushual quota of "Personals" for this ishue and being as nobuddy has brung enny of same into the offis for publicashion why the long & short of it is there aint none and that's all there is to it. What's the use for us to him & haw and try to pertend ennythink else? Answer—no use.

We trust our subscribers will kindly overlook this omishion and by next wk. we hope to be able to print a whole mess of "Personals." Be that as it may we call your partickler attenshion to our "Lokal Squibs & Jottings" in another collum. Praps these will help to make up for no "Personals." By grachious we hope so.

I am willing to except enny kind of a job that is honerable perviding that the board is good and also the bed soft and the hours not to long. Offis Is Closed

Amos Hillyer, J. of the P. Notary Publick & attorney at law, desires us to state for him that beginning next Sunday and continuing for one wk. without further notis his law offis will be closed to everybuddy.

Ame says the time has came when he cant put off building him a new henhouse enny longer being as his old henhouse has went to rack & ruin as you might say and his hens aint got no place to lay their heads or roost neither for that matter.

This being true Ame has desided to close up his law offis tightern a bung for a wk. to bild him a new henhouse doing all the carpenter work hisself ruthern pay Lem Brown our expert carpenter $1 per day & thus save seven or eight dollers.

Kindly dont bother Ame with enny law bizness unless it is awful important & there is somethink in it for him becuz he dont want to be pestered whilst bilding his henhouse. He says if he aint too tired he can be saw after supper during the wk. in case its important. If it aint please stay away.

Lokal Squibs & Jottings

How do you like that new headline "Lokal Squibs & Jottings" hey? It looks purty nice to us and we hope it does to you. Of course a Squib and a Jotting is a good eal the same, but when you put em both together in the same line they add considerable variety.

Hod Quigly says he aint a going to advertise in the Bugle enny more becuse it dont bring results. Hod advertised for his lost dog and becuz he aint found it as yet he blames the Bugle. Hod talks a good eal like a blamed fool—praps the dog aint not only lost but dead! In that case would it be the falt of the Bugle becuz he diddent git his dog back? Some folks makes us sick.

The Deacons of our church who sets over in the Amen corner during service is talking about circulating a subscripshion paper amongst the members of the congregashion to collectk funds suffishent to shingle the holes in the roof over where they set becus it is very annoying when it rains during service to be woke up outen a sound sleep by water tricklin down your neck.

Jed Peters our intelligent school teacher whose term was ended not long sinst is resting up and recooperating at the present writing. Jed says he aint made up his mind yet as to what he will do during the summer. He may become a book agent or again he may except a lookerative posishion working on a farm for $15 per month & found until school takes up again in the ottum.

Ezra Underwood went around a few days ago in a house to house canvas peddling out what he said was a spring lamb whitch he had killed the day before. Hink Barclay who purchased some said it tasted more like mutton than a spring lamb to him and took Ez to task about it afterward. When Ez was cornerd he admitted that it was a last spring two years ago spring lamb.

In looking over our file we have discuverd that our ishue for the wk. of June 23, 1868, is missing and as a result our file aint complete without it. Ennybuddy having a copy of the above date will confer a great favor on us by bringing same to this offis and persenting it to us with their compliments whereupon they will be liberally thanked. This one copy aint of no value to you, but it's worth a good eal to us and we're willing to pay for it with heartfelt gratitood.

Clem Wilson and Wes Woodruff our expert hunter & trapper made a trip to Gootchic Pond fishing last Satterday. They went together, but returned seperate and now they don't speak. It seems that Clem yanked a big pickerel outen the water right into Wesses fase and eyes hard enuff to nearly knock Wes down and Wes got mad at Clem and wouldn't have nothink to do with him after that.

Jim Hill while hurrying up in shaving his fase last Sunday morning so as to git into his biled shirt and be at church service on time axidentally gashed hisself on the right ear and it bled like everythink. Jim forgot hisself and swore like everythink whitch was heard by his nabers & after giving way in this manner to his temper he wassent in no spiritchool frame of mind to go to church whitch he diddent. However Jim says he'll haft to say one thing for that razzer he diddent think it was sharp enuff to cut his ear.

Dad Henderson says he calkilates we be a going to have a big crop of appels this fall judging from the amount of appel blossoms he has saw everywhere. This will be good news to them who is in the habit of making hard cider in our midst. Last fall the appel crop wassent so good and as a result there wassent skeercely enuff hard cider to go round.

A NURSE'S HURRIED DIARY of STARVATION, DEATH, MUD, COLD and RESCUE in the WAR

TWO weeks ago today orders came to evacuate the hospital of Plevlja at once. Dr. B. spent the day operating on small cases. Tuesday orders came there was plenty of time and heaps of transports would be given us, so we went on packing in a quiet sort of way. It snowed all Tuesday night and froze. Wednesday likewise, and was a fearful day. At midnight orders came that we were all to go at once, and an advance party was to start at 4 a. m. for Charcovitza and prepare a place for the wounded. So Dr. B. and I with an English orderly and three Austrian prisoners were to start. Two carts and a conveyance were to come for transport and luggage. We got busy packing with a view of the possibility of never seeing the most of it again. I got to bed at 11 a. m., woke early, and, knowing the ways of the country, got up at 5 a. m., had a little food at 5:30—but no transports arrived. At 8:30, two carts and a sort of buggy arrived, so luggage and food were packed, and off we started. It was icy cold, 32 degrees of frost and 3 feet of snow. Moving was slow work, and I soon got frozen stiff, so decided to walk. We met the sirdar and had a talk. He, of course, had settled where we were to go. I walked from 8:45 to 11:30, then had to wait for an hour in the snow for the carts to come on, which was slow work. We then had three sandwiches and four ginger biscuits each. I then decided to drive, but Dr. B. decided to walk on; the orderlies were on foot with the carts. The pace was very slow, the roads very steep and the horses already dead beat. At 3 we had to rest one hour while the horses fed, if you can call it feeding. They are all half starved here. At 4 on again. The cold was fearful. Soon it was more than painful to get on. Every twenty yards the horses would stop for a rest. Everybody we met told us it was one hour to Coveran, where we were to put up for the night. We were told that at 5 p. m. and at 10 p. m. we were still on the road. No sign of Dr. B. and the two orderlies. All day we heard the guns near us, so we were still near the danger zone. At 10:30 a weary, hungry and frozen Mabel arrived at Coveran. A policeman met me and told me Dr. B. was lying on the floor of the hut reserved for us, very ill. I went in in fear and trembling. The hut consisted of one small room. Dr. B. looked livid, so I made up some hot rum and gave it to him, and took some myself. I found he had no soles left to his shoes, and had been walking in his stocking feet, the upper part of the shoes still on. I happened, luckily, to have a pair of heavy socks in my pocket, so I put them on his feet. There was no food, so, hungry and weary, I had to lie down on the straw on the floor beside Dr. B. There were ten men, the chief of the district, the engineer and five other men besides. All slept there that night. Next day we got up at 8 and had a tiny cup of Turkish coffee, but no food. At 8:30 we started to walk down a sort of glacier and then through streams. (Dr. B. with only socks on his feet, uppers of shoes bandaged on) for about one and one-half miles, then we got on ponies, and went on and on for four hours, crossing rivers, ice and snow, bogs and every sort of place under the sun. At 1:30 we reached Charcovitza, a miserable, dirty little Turkish village of about twenty buildings. We went to the head of the village's office, and made ourselves known, and were as usual invited to coffee, but, alas, no food, and we were ravenous. Then, after waiting one-half hour, there came a message of apology. There was no sugar to be had. We have all had narrow escapes of being taken prisoners, and there have been times when we all thought all was up, and we must make the best of a bad job, and it was a sort of "every man must look for himself." We all have had money given us, and so far are together and well. November 24—At the present moment and for the past ten days all I possess in the world is what I stand in, and I may eventually arrive home in my skiing clothes. My clothes have not been off my back for six days and cannot be for six more, so, you see, we are tasting war very severely. Tuesday the sirdar's A. D. C. came. News was very bad. We must move on in two days. At 10:30 news was much worse, so we had twenty-nine ox sleighs given us, and told to leave everything but personal luggage and fly. A busy scene then ensued. Food was parceled out, luggage packed on sleighs, and division made as to what to leave and what to take. And you would have laughed to see kettles, pots and pans fastened to sleighs. At 12 the oxen began to move off. The orderlies and some of the prisoners on what is known as a twelve-hour walk, but cannot be done under eighteen. Dr. C. stayed behind, as Dr. H. and Mrs. M. had not come up from the dressing station. Mrs. R., Miss G. and I were in the sirdar's carriage and cart, which was standing empty, and we thought was for our own use, but it was for the Russian nurses, but in these days that was a mere detail. We started at 1 and were taken to Bierpoli. We were the first people who had driven into the town, and really the roads were too terrible! We had to go up 5000 feet over ruts and rocks, far from safe even on foot, and then down on the other side, arriving at 4. I had the inspiration of going to the prefect of the town, who proved to be an old friend, and in five minutes the whole town was at our disposal. The mayor was sent for, and we were told that to move on in the dark was out of the question, and horses would be ready at 5 a. m. We were taken to a private house by the prefect, where we were treated like royalty, though they were all packed up and ready to evacuate. The Austrians were only four hours away. We all had to share the same room, but it was warm, and we had mattresses to sleep on. At 4 a. m. next day our hostess lit the fire. At 5 we had to get up, and at 6, in the dark and cold, we had to start. The prefect came to see us off, and we rode pack horses, which is really a mild form of torture. My poor brute kept stumbling. They were all starving and are sad sights. The paths got worse and worse, and the poor brute could hardly get on. The scenery was gorgeous. At 10 we halted at a mud hut, and had rum and biscuits, and then on again to a place called Nitrovitza, which consisted of about six mud huts. We halted about one hour. The place was foodless, but we had jam and biscuits in a horribly dirty hut. At 2 p. m. on again. The paths got worse and worse. The ride will be a nightmare for the rest of my days. It was icy cold, and grew darker and darker, and the path more and more perilous. As far as I was concerned, the ride reached its climax when, crossing a bit of a path, my horse's hind legs slipped down the bank and went down, down on loose gravel. I flung my left leg free of the stirrup and we went over the side of the bank, hoping the horse would not squeeze me against the shingle. Dr. B., who, thank goodness, was behind me, jumped off his horse, seized me by the arm, got me free of the poor brute and hauled me up the bank again, unhurt and utterly unnerved. Had I been in the rear I should have gone to a certain and swift death in the rushing, roaring river way down below. One could barely see the ground, and felt that each moment might be one's last. We were all dead beat, having had little food since 5:30 a. m., and had been riding for hours. We reached Kolashin at 8 p. m., having ridden on pack horses for twelve solid hours. We were met and taken to rooms, where supper was prepared. If I tried all my life I could never describe the place. One went through a sort of entrance hall, dirty beyond words and filled with about a dozen refugees on mattresses; then through the kitchen and dining room, filled with adults and children, and a lot of dirty food on still dirtier plates. On a disgusting table was remains of a meal, which made one sick to look at. This was our dining room. The atmosphere was indescribable, and, tired and hungry as I was, I longed to get out into the fresh air. We sat on broken chairs, while the debris of the meal was cleared away. Dr. B said we would go and inspect our sleeping rooms and see if it were possible to stay one night in such a hole. He came down, and said all there was was one small, dirty room, with one small bed, no stove and the room like an ice box. We could not stay. The guide with us was sent out, the president of the Red Cross sent for, and Dr. B. went to the prefect. All was useless. Seven hundred refugees had arrived that day, every floor in every house was full, and people were starving all around us. Nothing to do. It is snowing hard, with an icy wind. The town is small and crowded with refugees, all starving. We are existing on a small cup of coffee in the morning. We have no stores with us. At noon we have a sort of soup and bread made of Indian meal—horrible—and sour cheese, which we cannot touch, hungry as we are. At 4 a doll's cup of coffee and at 6 a sort of stew. We are being worse fed than prisoners, as they get a loaf of bread, two lots of tea and two lots of hot stew, with potatoes and beans or rice. The sights one sees are sickening; the poor prisoners, half clad and hungry and nowhere to go; misery everywhere and not a thing to buy. We spend our days huddled over the stove, talking, sleeping (?) and looking out of the window. I hope some transports will get in. We long for blankets. We are waiting to see if our luggage and food can be saved, as we still may have very hard times in front of us, as there is no food in the country, and we have no idea what the future has in store for us. December 2—Still here in this fearsome place, and not radiantly happy, but in good spirits. We hope to get away on Saturday. The bridges which were broken down are not yet mended, but we are honing. We are told that the worst part of the journey is yet to come. We will have to wait in Podjoritza until transports can be found, then we are to be sent to Scutari, then Medua and on to Italy—Podjoritza. Another week and one more step nearer the end. We waited and waited in vain for the motors to come which were to transfer us and our goods on here. Then the message came, "No benzine," so we must drive. We were up at 5 a. m. and left at 8. We got the sirdar's horses. This time the road was good, but, oh! the horrors of the journey from then till 4:30 p. m.! We had to drive through and past the remains of the second Servian army, which was returning from its last stand in Spec, in Montenegro. We passed thousands of men, horses, oxen and a quantity of guns. The men looked weary beyond words. Some had not fed for four days. Oxen and beasts were starving. Dying and dead horses were scattered along the route, and the whole day we had to pass this sad and weary army. We passed the night at an inn. There was one room for seven of us; two beds, and vermin galore. At 6 a. m. we were off again, and got here at 7. We four V. A. D.'s are in one dirty room, with two beds and a sofa. The food is vile, and but for the fact that one is starving one could not go on. This town, unlike the usual Montenegrin town, is warm. There are a few huge motors, which convey bread to the troops, when they have it. The troops are in huge camps. There is now no bread, tea, sugar, flour, salt or milk. Meat (?) enough for the present. The shops are bare. There is no oil in the town, so I am holding a candle on my knee while writing this. We are to stay here as short a time as possible, and then on to Scutari and then Medua. At present the latter has been shelled for three days, every boat has been sunk and houses destroyed, so we may not get away, and yet to stay means absolute starvation. Saturday—An awful night, soldiers shouting all night. The only words I could understand were "Idi bolnitzer" and "Ida ambulance," which means "Go to the hospital," "Go to the ambulance." We should have to travel through a bit of Albania, and they are people who are unfriendly to all. They pilfer, steal and murder any one. It is wet today, which makes it very trying—and only one room for four V. A. D.'s and the little waif, Desanda! All hospital supplies have been lost, but we got our patients to safety. (?) December 15—On the quay at Fianetz, 4:15 p. m. Oh, the weary waiting! Oh, what a time we are having here! We have been waiting on the steps of a horribly smelly, God-forsaken spot since 7 a. m. We are, they say, waiting for a Servian general and his staff. Meanwhile the crowd increases, and the boat, a sort of dirty yacht, does not increase in size, so what will happen? Goodness alone knows. We are a mottly, dirty-looking crowd of English men and women. A mission of thirty women from Servia who have been waiting for eight weeks joined us yesterday. Some are really very ill, all in wet clothes, and most have no boots to their feet. They have slept in the snow more nights than not. Just now a naval officer and thirty Englishmen of the naval brigade came up. They are in rags and the men absolutely done up. No one has food enough to satisfy one. We came down here yesterday morning in a motor lorry, used for that was a mere detail. At 5:30 we reached Scutari. It was dark and rainy. There was no pier, and we had to be taken off in small boats. There were also no steps, so we had to scramble over 12 feet, trusting to the man below to catch us. Then we had to walk two miles over a fearful road. We eventually arrived at a huge building and were shown into a huge room filled with straw, our home for the night, but we were mighty glad. When our small stores arrived we got some biscuits, jam and tea and had a meal. We got out some blankets and laid down in the straw. Orders were to get up at 6 a. m., which we did, and had breakfast (boiled the water, fixed our food and used the floor for a table). Our ablutions were performed in the yard from a bucket, which we drew from a well—men and women together, a weird experience. Having washed, eaten and packed up, we proceeded as per usual to wait. It poured hard. At 10:30 we were told to go round to the consuls, where we were invited to tea. The ox carts would collect our poor luggage, and then come around for us to take us to a half-way place to Medua. We went to the consul's, a weird and fearful party of about forty females, we four the only decent, tidy ones in the party. We were shown into an empty room, but the window had seats, so the lucky early ones could sit. Tea came around, but on and on we waited. At 12 we were told to come to the ox carts. We went and all we saw was a long row of ox carts, weird and fearfully dirty things, some laden with luggage, others empty. Then suddenly all the carts moved off and we were told to follow. Obediently we did so, and had to go miles around a filthy town. Eventually we found the men had been trying to find hay for the oxen for four days. Miss G., Dr. B. and I said we would walk. It was too late to go as far as we wanted, as the ox carts cannot go in the dark. Robbers might come from the hills and take everything. Well, I have walked many miles over many bad roads, but that day seemed to be the limit. It began to pour. The roads were a series of bowlders, rocks and streams, and we soon got wet through, but we had to go on, passing dead and dying horses, dying cattle and desperately sick men. At 4:30 we met the man who had been sent in advance to prepare places for sleeping. Being first, and soaking wet, I said we would have the first house. We went through an awful yard, up a ladder, and were shown into a large room, bare except for a mat, and a fire in the middle of the room, and no chimney, but somewhere in the roof was a hole. Some of the smoke went through that way, but in a few minutes the room was full and my eyes were streaming. We took off our boots and sat around the fire on the floor, while the family, males and children, squatted around us, smoking and talking. My Serbian is feeble, though I understand a good deal, but I manage to make conversation. At 6 the ox wagons arrived, and by 7:30 we got a sort of meal, and all went to sleep on the floor, fourteen of us in one room, the floor of which was deemed as unsafe. It poured all night, but at 6 we were up again. My boots were so shrunk it took me fifteen minutes to pull them on, and my feet were most painful. At 7, in the soaking rain, we started off again. We were told the oxen would take twelve hours, walking was six, so Dr. B., Miss G., Mrs. M. and I decided that twelve hours in an ox cart, which, I must tell you, is the most impossible of all vehicles, would be very uncomfortable, so off we went in the deluge. The day will remain imprinted on my memory until I die. Nightmares are not in it. The road was all streams; one had to pass and repass soldiers, horses and oxen, who splashed hopelessly. At 11 a. m. my feet were most painful, the boots being so tight and my feet swollen. We asked every other person how much farther it was. A man on horseback said one hour, and I was a bit comforted, as I was a bit faint and queer. At 12:30 we asked the distance again, and were told four hours. Then we sat down for a half hour. At 1 we went on again, I leading to set the pace. The mountain passes were so bad we had to climb over a series of rocks and logs. At 2 we again asked, and were told two hours. By this time I really felt done, but one had either to wait on the road or else struggle on, so on we went. At last we saw the village where we were to put up and await the arrival of the boat, so I was cheered, though it was some way on. I also was hungry and thirsty, as all we had since 6 a. m. was a few mild biscuits, some potted meat and three figs each. We tramped up and down, weary as we were, to keep warm, then we sat on the luggage till it was removed, and then on dirty flour sacks. At 7 an American came and gave us two loaves of white bread, which we ate with glee. Every half hour some one went to see if the luggage had arrived. Other people from the Slobart mission arrived and got on board. At 11:15 the call went up, "Here they come," and, sure enough, they were. A wild rush ensued. The Albanians could not or would not understand that we wanted the luggage unpacked from the ox carts, so, tired as we were, we all did our best and landed it on the platform. From there it was transferred to small boats and we all got into the same. Then the cry went up, "She's off," and, sure enough, out she steamed, and we were left behind. The boat was an Italian one, with two armed cruisers. She had to make the ten-hour journey to Brindisi in the dark for fear of the Austrians, so had to start. We then had to find a roof for our heads, and got one room of the portable hut, in which were already four Servian soldiers snoring in beds. There were three other dirty beds, so four of our party slept on the floor and the others shared beds. In the morning we were scratching ourselves for all we were worth. We walked to the sea, and later took fresh clothes and went away to the hills, where we found a spring of fresh water, and there we had a bath and felt in a way clean. After dinner (?) we cleared out the lousy beds (?), cleaned the room, put up our seven camp beds and felt happier and cleaner. The captain of the post has to allow us daily rations of bread, fearful bacon, rice and tinned meat, and, with our own supplies, saved from the wreckage, we got along. Half an hour ago some one came and dumped the Servian girl upon us, as if in this room eight were not enough! Well, here we are and here we must remain until a boat comes for us or the Bulgarians take us prisoners. I do not care which. We are all quite reconciled to our fate, whatever it is that lies before us, although we hope a boat of sorts will come in a few days. Medua three days later—No good news to relate. Things are very serious, and in a few days we may be done for or else away. But until we reach Brindisi we are still very likely to be torpedoed. Yesterday morning a small steamer tugged a little boat from here to go to Scutari, filled with flour for the Montenegrins, but half a mile from here, in sight of everybody, up comes an enemy submarine and captured the boat, and was prepared to tow it into Cattaro, but one of the boat's crew fired and killed an Austrian on the submarine, so they in turn fired a bomb, blew up the ship and went off. We think all the boat's crew were killed or drowned, so you can see that if we venture out except after dark our fate will be in the bottom of the sea. We have one piece of good luck, and one only: Admiral Trowbridge has arrived here and has been made a sort of king of the place. We instantly made ourselves charming to him, and he is a perfect dear, and has done all he could for our comfort, which consists in being by ourselves in this room, except for the young Servian girl, and he won't allow any one to come near us. The other room is divided from this by a wooden partition three-fourths of the way up, is filled with straw, and is to hold forty to sixty women and children. The row is indescribable. The admiral comes daily for tea, and leaves black bread and jam, which he has not had for ages, but, alas! we have but two and one-half pots, 1 pound, of jam left. I have almost forgotten the taste of butter. Our meals are very dull. Our stores can last another ten days, and then all we can have is black bread, rice and tea. No sugar, no milk, no vegetables, etc. Another tragedy is that when it rains, which it frequently does, the rain comes through on all our beds. The draft under the door is poisonous, and last night no one could sleep it was so cold, as the weather had changed, and the bitter north wind is blowing a hurricane. Christmas Day, 1915—Safe, I think, but oh, what an awful time we have had, and no mistake! I feel years older. Thursday the admiral held out vague hopes of a ship coming. At 6 p. m. the same night came a Serbian officer, saying a boat is coming Friday and we were to be ready. We all danced like a lot of children at the thought of deliverance when all seemed hopeless. No sooner had he gone than a man came, saying "Lights out, as seven Austrian ships were supposed to be coming that way. In less than one-half hour every hillside light and fire was out and the place absolutely dark. We thought our last chance of deliverance had fled. At 9 p. m. Dr. C. went to the admiral to see if we had better sleep on the hills than in our beds. We went to bed, but no one undressed, as, taken prisoner, it would be as well to be dressed, as all we should ever have would be the clothes we stood in. We all slept badly. At 6 a. m. we looked and saw no signs of a steamer; at 7 the same. An English naval man gave us the good news a ship had been sighted, so home (?) we went, happy and at ease. It was a glorious day, and the order came, the baggage must be ready early. Yet again more joyful news—a hospital ship had come for all women and children and mission doctors. This was the best of all, as in another boat there was always the fear of torpedoes and submarines. At 11 a. m., a gloriously hot day, without a cloud, the cry went up, "Aeroplanes." I flew to the door, and right overhead were two. Suddenly an awful cry, "Bombs!" and every one forced their way in and laid down. Then came an appalling explosion, which shook everything, and I thought the wooden hut must come down. The bomb, however, fell into the water twenty yards away. The question came, what to do? It was very unsafe to stay in the house or near the water, and to get away one ran awful risks of being hit with a rifle shot, which were buzzing all over the place. Twelve fell in the space of fifteen minutes, and I can assure you it was awful. We returned to our hut rather shaken, but no one was hurt, though every bomb fell within a few hundred yards of us, some only twenty or thirty yards away. Six men were killed and one wounded. I never want to be so near bombs again. Messages then came that we were all to hurry and be on board by 2 p. m., as the enemy might return with more bombs. The bombs were intended to sink the food ship, which had arrived at 9 a. m. from Italy. It is extraordinary how the enemy seem to know every movement. The Bulgarians, too, were supposed to be only fifteen miles away, so one felt the place much too warm. We have invited the admiral and Commander Carr to dinner (Christmas), a day early, so we got out the tins of tongue, brawn, turkey, sardines, butter, peaches, dried figs, cheese and biscuits, which we had saved all summer for Christmas dinner. Miss G. found a sugar biscuit, with mistletoe, which was handed to the admiral on his entry, and he promptly kissed us all around, and Dr. C. followed suit, so amongst much merriment we sat down to our last meal here. The table was a camp bed and our chairs, boxes, etc. At 1 everything was ready to go on board, and I, for one, was truly thankful. Nothing could exceed the kindness with which we were all received on board, and the best wards were put at our disposal. We spent the day in Brindisi harbor, and were able to enjoy ourselves, and speeches were made in our honor. Then on to Malta and France, and chased for seven hours in the Mediterranean by a submarine.
